March Ends In Algiers Bloodbath

ALGIERES (AP)—European settlers rallied to the call of the Secret Army Organization Monday with a defiant march that ended in a bloodbath in the centre of Algiers. Fifty persons were killed and 186 wounded.

The violence broke out as President de Gaulle made a national television and radio broadcast in Paris, calling for approval of the Algerian peace agreement and warning the Secret Army that it would be punished. Frenchmen will vote approval — expected — or disapproval of the agreement ending the 7½-year Algerian War in a referendum April 8.

The Secret Army had just learned it had been dealt a severe blow in its underground war to keep Algeria French. Ex-Gen. Edmond Jouhaud, once high in French military circles and the Secret Army's chief in western Algeria, had been seized in Oran. He was hustled off to a prison in Paris, where he is under death sentence.

As night fell over the silent city of Algiers, French officials described the situation as "tragically alarming." They expressed fears that general rioting and fratricidal war may

'Punishment Sure'

Rampaging Europeans Warned by de Gaulle

CP from AP-Reuters

PARIS — President de Gaulle put his prestige on the line Monday as he called on the French people to approve the Algerian peace settlement.

And he warned members of the right-wing Secret Army Organization, on the rampage in Algeria against the settlement, that they will be punished.

REFERENDUM SET

In a nation-wide television and radio broadcast, de Gaulle said French support in the referendum, to be held April 8, would "show the criminals who are trying through terrorist attacks to force the state's hand, and enslave the nation that they have only punishment to look forward to."

The referendum is expected to bring a solid vote of approval for the peace settlement reached last week in the 7½-year Algerian war.

ASSURANCE ASKED

"I am and I must say it, a massive, affirmative answer to the question I am putting to the French people is for them a means of assuring me that in my quality as head of state they give me support."

If French voters showed the way Algeria's Europeans undoubtedly would come around to reason, de Gaulle said.

Reds Supply Space Data

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) — The Soviet Union has supplied the United Nations with data on 16 Soviet space launchings for inclusion in a UN registry of space vehicles. The Soviet list, made public Monday, was received 19 days after a similar compilation was submitted by the United States.

City Taxes May Soar

By TED SHACKLEFORD

Plummeting income and rocketing budget estimates indicate the end of the city's pay-as-you-go policy, resumption of borrowing and a solid increase in taxes.

Facing a city hall yesterday when the annual budget discussions began was an assessment $2,000,000 less than last year, a mill which is worth $2,000 less than in 1961, and a preliminary budget more than $850,000 higher than last year's final total.

ALDERMEN WARNED

At Mayor R. B. Wilson's suggestion, aldermen began earmarking projects which could best be financed by borrowed money.

And comptroller-treasurer James Bramley warned aldermen "I can see an increase of three or four mills without even trying" even if the budget was pared to the bone.

ONE BRIGHT SPOT

Ending the city's 10-year-old pay-as-you-go policy and borrowing the money necessary to finance capital projects seems the only way city council can keep the tax increase to a "reasonable" level, Mayor R. B. Wilson commented.

Moslems Scream As Dead Mount

ALGIERES (AP) — The concrete floor of the morgue was covered with blood, and barefoot Moslem women were pouring water over the naked corpses.

There were 37 of them, men and women, killed in Monday's shootings. Their bloodstained clothes were piled in the corner of the morgue of the Mustapha Hospital.

Poet Frost Hails Kennedy, Nikita

WASHINGTON (AP)—Poet Robert Frost got a medal on his 88th birthday Monday and tossed complimentary messages to President Kennedy, former-President Eisenhower and Premier Khrushchev.

Frost said of Kennedy: "A nice Irish weakness for poetry."

The poet described Eisenhower as "a fine old dignitary, a fine old general."

And of the Soviet Premier he said:

"What a grand man! What a creature! He's an enemy of mine, of course, but think of his fears-of us in front of him, of what's around him, of the politeness behind him. And it doesn't seem to bother him a bit. Some day, of course, he may slip, but he's a terror."

Army Revolt Now Faces Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—An Argentine army general proclaimed open rebellion early today against President Arturo Frondizi for "committing treason" in refusing to resign from office.

The rebellion call came from Gen. Franklin Rawson, commander of the third cavalry division in southern Buenos Aires province.

He issued his communique only moments after Frondizi defied renewed military pressure to quit and rejected a plea from ex-president Pedro Aramburu that Frondizi abandon his office to end the nation's biggest crisis in seven years.

Gen. Rawson declared the use of force was the only means left for those demanding the end of Frondizi's four-year regime.

GENERALS MEET

Rawson's announcement came as other army generals were meeting at war ministry headquarters to plan strategy in the face of Frondizi's persistent refusals to step down.

Aramburu, the crisis mediator who Sunday night warned the country faced civil war if the crisis was not resolved quickly, declared that all armed forces were agreed that Frondizi must go.

REVOLT FEARED

But there was no immediate indication of how other military units would react to Rawson's move to rebel.

Just prior to Rawson's declaration it had been feared that Frondizi's latest refusal might touch off the military revolt that has been threatening since the recent election victories won by followers of exiled former dictator Juan Peron.

'WON'T QUIT'

After talking with the president, Aramburu said Frondizi had declared "he is not resigning and will not resign."

The decision appeared to mark the end and complete failure of Aramburu's 10-day mediation mission that started last Friday. The collapse came after Frondizi had sworn in a new cabinet, ready to press on with the austerity program that brought the Peronist upheaval of the polls.

FOULKES

While General Foulkes conveyed his votes to Mr. Isherwood immediately upon an announcement of the results, thus making the choice unanimous, it is understood the vote tally was 90 for the General and 82 for Mr. Isherwood.

Both men campaigned strongly for the candidacy. Mr. Isherwood admitted his knowledge of local affairs was limited, but he announced his intention to support development of Victoria University.

Gen. Foulkes attacked the present government's lack of a constructive policy in matters of defence and international affairs.

While the ballots were counted, Paul Hellyer, Liberal MP for Trinity and former associate defence minister, spoke to the nominating convention.

Joint A-Arms Control

Now Offered Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—The United States has offered Canada joint control over nuclear weapons on Canadian territory on the basis of the Anglo-American "two-way" system, a reliable source said Monday.

The U.S. offer has been agreed upon by the Canadian and American defence departments and by the U.S. state department but as yet has not been accepted or acted on by the Canadian government, the source said.

McGill

Plans

Space First

MONTREAL (CP) — McGill University announced Monday it will expand its research program by firing a small missile-shaped vehicle into the upper atmosphere. It will be the world's first non-government space testing.

The launching site is a high-altitude station at McGill's Brack Research Institute in Barbados.

The vehicles will be rockets, shot high into the air by a gun, then fired higher by their own motors. They were designed in Canada.

Instead of ammunition, the vehicles or atmospheric probes—as scientists call them—will carry chemicals and measuring equipment. These are to be released in the upper atmosphere, where the vehicles will record the reactions and transmit them back to the ground by radio.

No Immunity For BCE Court Rules

Not Crown Agency Despite Take-Over

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Columbia Court of Appeal ruled Monday the B.C. Electric Company, expropriated by the provincial government last August, is not an agent of the Crown.

The court ruled in a majority decision the company is not a government department and therefore does not enjoy Crown immunity from legal action although the provincial government is its sole shareholder.

The Appeal Court made this ruling in dismissing three appeals by the BCE against three pre-trial orders made by the Supreme Court of B.C. in an action by the B.C. Power Corporation, former parent company of the huge power utility.

B.C. Power seeks a Supreme Court declaration that the Power Development Act, under which BCE was expropriated, is invalid. Alternatively, it asks the court to set a fair compensation figure for the take-over.

The provincial government paid B.C. Power $111,000,000 for the 1,800,000 common shares of BCE and offered to take over B.C. Power—a federally-incorporated company which it could not expropriate—for an additional $68,000,000.

AMENDMENT BID

B.C. Power seeks a declaration from the court that the company was actually worth $225,000,000 at the time of the take-over.

An amendment to the act now before the legislature would withdraw the offer to take over B.C. Power and instead give it an additional $60,000,000 for BCE, bringing the total compensation to $171,000,000.

UNDER RECEIVERSHIP

Last week, on an application by the power corporation, the Supreme Court placed the BCE under receivership so that its assets will be safeguarded in the event B.C. Power wins its case. This decision has been appealed by the government and BCE and now is being debated in the Appeal Court.

DECISION UPHELD

At Monday's sitting, the Appeal Court upheld Supreme Court decisions that:

1. BCE must hand over to B.C. Power the documents the corporation says it needs to prove its case.

2. BCE must permit the power corporation to enter BCE property for evaluation purposes.

Peace River Company Plans Damages Suit

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Peace River Power Development Company said Monday it has applied for permission to sue the British Columbia government for breach of contract.

The application asks for an order for the government to pay the company's legal costs.

Company president W. C. Mainwaring said the allegation of breach of contract was made in a petition of right filed with the provincial government Feb. 28.

FLAT REQUIRED

The government has taken no action on the petition and therefore the company is now trying to launch a lawsuit, he said.

Mr. Mainwaring said a flat (permission to sue the Crown) was required before Peace River Power could begin a suit.

The petition maintained Peace River Power lived up to a contract signed with the government to develop the Peace River project.

Leaky Gillnetters 'Hazard to Life'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Some fishermen spend more time bailing out leaky boats than catching fish, says an organizer for the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union.

George Jeffrey told the union's annual convention here that unseaworthy gillnetters are a hazard to life. "Some boats are not fit to go across the harbor," he said.

Heath Briefs Diefenbaker On Market

OTTAWA (UPI)—British Lord Privy Seal Edward Heath spent six hours yesterday briefing Prime Minister Diefenbaker and members of the Canadian cabinet on the forthcoming crucial stage of Britain's negotiations with the European Common Market.

Mr. Heath, Britain's chief common market negotiator and Finance Minister Fleming agreed the talks were "very useful" and both sides had reached "a mutual understanding."

Heath, on his second visit to Ottawa in three months, "fully understands how important these matters are to Canada," Mr. Fleming said.

Farmers to Abide

Soil Conserving Act For Alberta Planned

EDMONTON (CP)—The Alberta legislature Monday gave first reading to a bill designed to establish the province's first soil conservation act.

The bill would give municipalities power to force a farmer to undertake conservation practices deemed necessary by a municipality and would provide penalties up to $200 or 30 days in jail for failure to comply with conservation orders.

ASSUME CONTROL

It would also allow the municipality to assume control of a farm for a period ranging between three to five years to effect conservation practices under provisions of the present Agriculture Service Board Act. The farm would then be turned

Cuba May Collapse Of Hunger—Witness

MONT REAL (CP)—In a copyrighted report from Gerald Clark, its associate editor, The Star says Cuba is on the edge of starvation and complete economic collapse.

Mr. Clark wrote from Kingston, Jamaica, following an eight-day visit to Cuba. "If you have ever seen any one die of cancer you will understand what is happening to Cuba," Mr. Clark wrote. "I left there Saturday, dumbstruck at the shattering disintegration that has taken place since my last visit there just a year ago."

SOME GRUMBLED

"In 1961 some people in Havana grumbled and cursed the steady improving of communism. But at least they looked healthy and ate well."

"In 1962 the grumbling has taken on ominous proportions, with women battling in market places for food for their children."

RECALLS PREDICTION

Mr. Clark recalled that a year ago he had written any invasion of Cuba would be met with stiff resistance. This had been confirmed a few weeks later when Cuban exiles had tried to recapture the country.

"Today I would not make such a prediction because the situation has changed drastically. Castro still has a rigid core of fanatic supporters, particularly among the teenagers who are being steadily indoctrinated."

"He also has an effective secret police, who even took to following me in Havana. He can boast of at least 300,000 armed militia men and women. But their loyalty is less certain; they themselves are ill-fed."

"The main force in Cuba, however, is the big flexible mass of people who last year wavered in their enthusiasm but did not join the vociferous group of anti-Castroites in open condemnation."

"So long as their stomachs were full there was relative contentment and the remarks were restrained."

OPEN COMMENTS

"But now hunger has brought on bitter and open resentful comments even by people who a few months ago classified themselves as supporters of the revolution."

He quoted an unnamed Cuban Communist as saying "the United States has won this round."

Girl, 15, Delivers Baby

CHARLOTTETOWN, P.E.I. (UPI)—A 15-year-old girl delivered her mother of an eight-pound girl at her home at North River, by following a doctor's step by step telephone instruction during the height of a snowstorm.

The mother and her newborn baby were reported well in hospital here yesterday. Dr. Paul Cadmore contacted the girl by phone after making two unsuccessful attempts to reach the home, two miles from Charlottetown. Aided by two snow plows, Dr. Cadmore reached the home later, and mother and baby were removed to hospital.

Acting With Vigor

THE WHOLESOME raid by police resulting in some 60 arrests of Freedomites on charges of conspiracy and intimidation should do much to restore confidence in the Doukhobor areas. There may be a gleam of hope of ending once and for all the reign of terror which has plagued the Kootenays for so many years.

The swift, vigorous action has heartened municipal authorities of the districts concerned.

Even more so is the break-through seen in the testimony by Freedomites in current trials. For the first time they have turned against leaders of the fraternal council and blamed them for the arson and bombings that culminated in the blowing up of the power pylon which has brought havoc and unemployment in its wake.

This may presage an end to the all-powerful influence of the council and its direction of Freedomite lawlessness over the years.

Mr. Bonner says the round-up of so many members of the Sons of Freedom is the result of year-long investigations. The inference will be therefore that the crown can make its indictment of those arrested stick.

Ottawa washes its hands of the Doukhobors on the grounds that it is up to the provincial authorities to deal with them. The long-range problem of real assimilation into Canadian patterns of behavior invites better co-operation than this, but meantime B.C. authorities are to be commended for their positive grappling with the Freedomite cancer in the B.C. midst.

It would seem at least they have laid hands on the main body of trouble-makers and if found guilty these can be removed from the scene, and the chances of permanent peace and quiet in the Kootenays will be enhanced. The more so because a younger generation of Doukhobors is growing up ready to throw off the shackles of ignorance and fanaticism.

Attractive Feature

VICTORIA will gain a feature that should be most attractive and interesting to tourists if the Chinese community proceeds with the idea of converting a block of Fisgard Street into an appropriately decorated pedestrian mall and establishing sightseeing tours of Chinatown for visitors.

Indeed it perhaps seems strange that a co-ordinated effort has not been made long before now to develop this city's Chinatown as San Francisco's has been developed, capitalizing on the romance of the Orient, the Chinese place in the history of this coast and the tourists' avid desire to see what they cannot see in their own home towns.

This, however, may be because Victoria's Chinatown has remained more of the genuine article until a later date than San Francisco's. Not many years ago, a move to put even part of Chinatown on display probably would have been resented by the majority of inhabitants, and properly so, as an invasion of their privacy. But members of the older generation, clinging firmly to the ways of the past in a closed community, have dwindled. They can still have privacy, but there is more room and more opportunity for development of the kind proposed.

Thus it is to be hoped that the plans afoot can be pushed to fruition as quickly as possible, and that visitors to Victoria this year will be drawn to glimpse a proud culture and a way of life that is strange and intriguing to them.

Closing the Parks

THE PRACTICALITY of closing all Saanich parks at night is doubted by Reeve Murphy and some members of Saanich council, although they seem to agree that steps should be taken to halt vandalism and wild and immoral behavior in the parks after dark, and that the more easily barred or inspected places should be closed.

But impractical as it might be to pass a general night-time parks closure bylaw and expect it to be successfully enforced all the time in all the parks, surely it would be helpful to have such a bylaw.

It is true that to keep everyone out of the parks after dark, as one councillor observed, would require "enclosures like wartime prison camps."

But catching vandals and bottle-smashers and litterers in action is just about as difficult. The task of the police certainly would be made easier if presence of anyone in a park at night were in itself a violation of the law, and even occasional exemplary charges as the result of sporadic police visits to the beaches and picnic places would serve to make them unpopular for nocturnal use.

Anybody's Guess

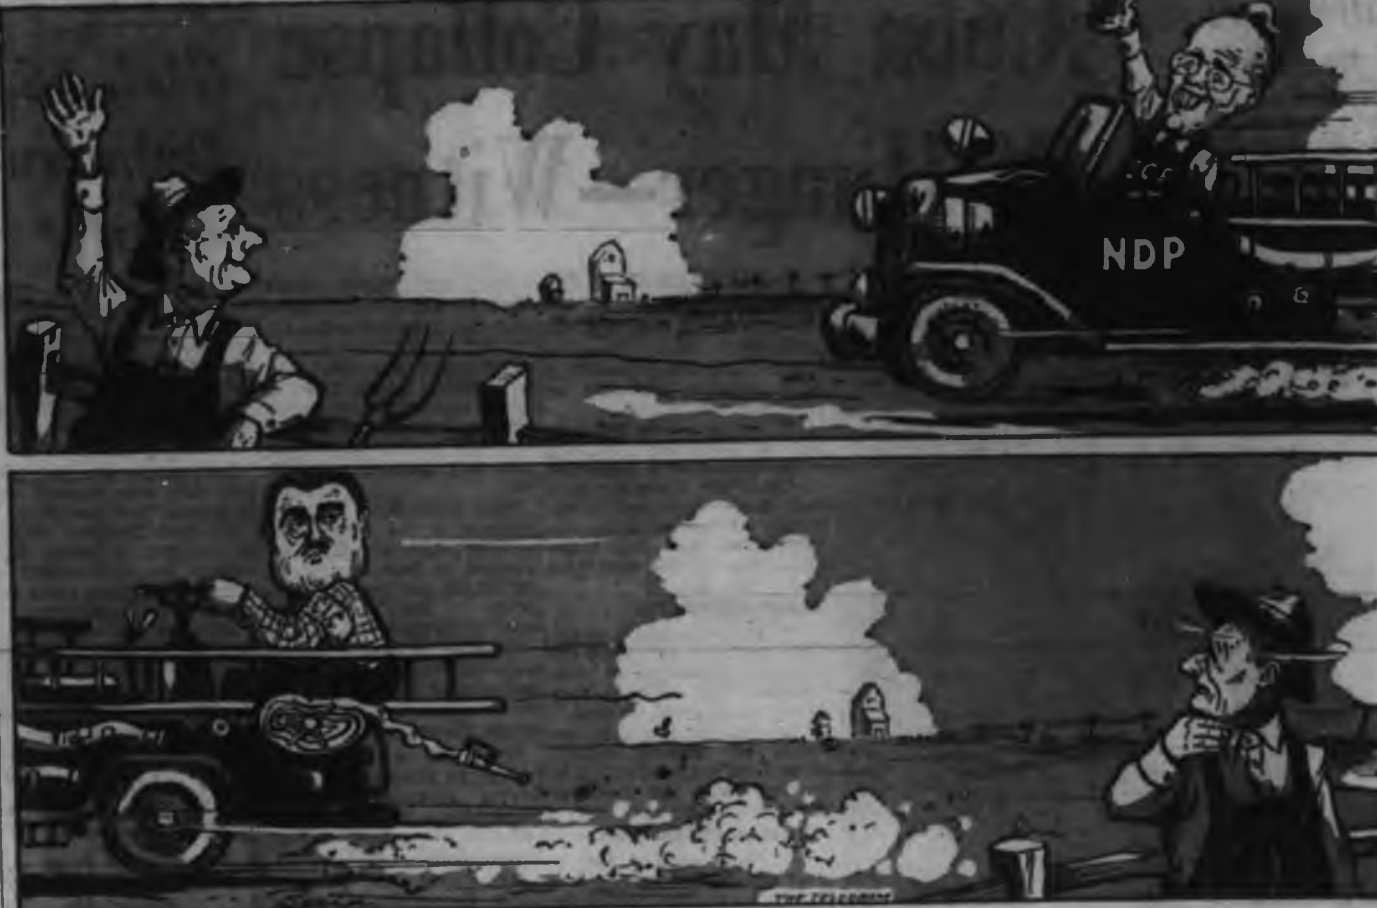

THE LIBERALS say the prime minister should be with his cabinet in the event of nuclear war enveloping this country, instead of functioning alone from his own official Ottawa residence. One hopes the question will always remain academic, but even so it might well be a matter of opinion, or strategy.

The initial plan called for all the cabinet to be in one shelter, which at its face value seemed a good idea, but now dispersal is thought to be the better planning. Supposedly the fear was that the whole cabinet might be wiped out at one fell blow and the country left leaderless.

Mr. Diefenbaker would not be running away from the job by staying at home, of course; a communication system would link all the ministers for ready consultation. The thought occurs that if the system was cut and put out of business, which presumably could easily happen, he would be left high and dry and out of touch.

The same thing could happen if the cabinet were all together, however. They could be cut off too if the lines to officiating agencies of government were smashed; being together is not so important as being in touch and so able to give directions.

Perhaps one scheme is as good as another in view of the imponderables of nuclear war, about which even the best brains can only guess.

Who's steering?

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes, and shoes, and eating was..."
BY TOM TAYLOR

GEORGE Orwell gave every one the jitters in "Nineteen Eighty-Four," and not without some grounds for his reflections, when he envisaged the Big Brother who would some day brainwash us into submission.

Another term for brainwashing is mental persuasion and this has been going on for a long time. Ever since the first man came out of a cave and taught his heir apparent how to think and act, I suppose.

There has always been a big brother of sorts, you see. The teacher at school, the preacher in the pulpit, the maestro on the podium—all these and others are instruments of persuasion.

But to the good. Despite what some few theorists may say in his youth, and after that too, has to be taught or given appreciation by his elders or tutors else he would be a vacuum. And therefore of no use to himself or to others.

Orwell wasn't depicting this kind of indoctrination, however. It is the menace of brainwashing with sinister motive behind the persuasion that has assumed new proportions. And there's not going to be any dodging of it; only will power and a tight grip of one's senses will provide the antidote.

Persuasion by capture of the mind processes frightened us anew as a result of Hitlerism and the Korean war, and through the subtleties of modern propaganda. And, leaving war and prison camps out of it, it is the latter that spells the danger.

Of course even an argument with your friend, whereby you hope to convert him to your viewpoint, is a form of brainwashing. But the scope of modern communications has enlarged the areas of influence.

And primarily through the ear and pictorial projection. The printed word is different. The saving grace here is that you may reject it in a jiffy if it displeases, but to resist a barrage of sound is not easy. Life cannot very well be lived with hearing cut off by cotton wool.

And the secret, well exemplified by dictators, is repetition.

You may note this with TV advertising. At its best it is a nuisance even if it is the price to be paid for free programs. The commercials annoy by their frequent and disturbing intrusion, and the sponsors must know this. They know something else, however. They know that just as the constant drip of water wears away stones so does their message sink in.

And orient the viewers unconsciously to their products. This is innocent enough since it's not fatal to use the wrong kind of face powder or any other commodity. All though the claims made on behalf of some items cannot be at all innocent.

But television illustrates the extent to which propaganda by false emphasis and repetition can color the mind.

There never was an age like the present one whereby one's thinking processes can be so easily and so much influenced by a person as resist all big brothers and try and sort things out for himself. To be strictly, in fact, from Missouri.

You might say this column seeks to impress the mind, and true enough it does. But only to interest, not capture it. And I'm not bent on being a capital letter Big Brother.

Washington Calling

U.S. Tests and Soviet Fallout

BY MARQUESS CHILDS

WHILE President Kennedy's nationwide television address was supposed to have put an end to all differences, the issue of nuclear testing in the atmosphere has arisen again in acute form.

The chief reason is a dramatic coincidence that the Soviet tests of last year will come down in the northern hemisphere. It happens that in mid-April with the spring rains the heaviest fallout from the Soviet tests of last year will come down in the northern hemisphere.

Guarded as are the U.S. Public Health Service references to fallout, in what critics have charged is a deliberate effort to play down the hazards, a recent PHS report said the fallout of cancer-producing strontium-90 would be "some what higher this spring" than following the series of Soviet-United States tests from 1956 through most of 1959.

The fear is that if a new American test series coincides with the beginning of this heavy fall of strontium-90 the Soviets will launch a worldwide propaganda effort to put the blame on this country. The subject is so complex and there is so much public knowledge and so much public apprehension that this misrepresentation might succeed.

Certain of the president's advisers are therefore recommending that he postpone the start of the tests scheduled for the end of April. In his television address the president said that preparations were going forward for a test series to begin about April 30 unless the Soviet Union agreed to a nuclear test ban providing inspection and control by an international agency. The Soviet delegation at Geneva has again denounced inspection and stood on a system of national policing of a ban.

The argument is obvious—by waiting at least until early summer the full responsibility will be on the Soviet Union. And it will be a heavy responsibility, since the PHS report shows that beginning in April or May many Americans, and especially children, will be taking in considerably larger amounts of strontium-90 each day.

However one appraises the hazard, whether by the standard of those who scoff at the danger as being little more than normal radiation from the atmosphere or by the standard of those who set the health and genetic damage to individuals in the millions rather than the hundreds of thousands, large numbers of human beings will be afflicted.

The Packshot

Fast Down Too

BY GREGORY CLARK

ON revisiting a small and thriving American city in the Midwest, a population of about 50,000, I was struck by the change in what had been the downtown district. Ten years had passed since I last saw it. Fine new office buildings of the semi-skyscraper type rose cleanly. But the shops and stores had become something else—modern showrooms, civic departmental offices.

The downtown was deserted of normal shopping traffic. When I inquired, I was told the shopping business had moved to the shopping centres out on the fringes of town. Then I remembered the extremely attractive "village," as they called it, one of the first shopping centres I had seen 10 years ago. Glittering, spacious, fresh: the ideal atmosphere for shopping. In due at birth or at some time in their life span.

The advisers recommending a delay are those who during the long controversy argued that the president could afford to wait in the hope than an opening for a test-ban treaty would be found before the nuclear arms race went into another season. The president's atomic and military advisers were overwhelmingly in favor of starting new tests at the earliest opportunity. The military were even dubious about including in the president's announcement his willingness to call off the tests if an inspected and controlled test ban could be agreed to. Here, said some of the most influential men in uniform, is where we are likely to be mouse-trapped.

They now see the threat of the mouse trap in the turn that the Geneva conference has taken. The Soviets reversed their earlier tough stand and agreed to discuss a nuclear test-ban treaty. The British delegation came forward with a proposal for a treaty providing a minimum of inspection. And this last may be related to new detection techniques discussed behind closed doors in Washington between top British scientists and their American counterparts.

One consequence is an upsurge of talk about the British being ready "to sell us out again." This is an ironic repetition of the history of the nuclear test-ban talks that began in late 1956. Twice, in the view of both American and British negotiators, a treaty with reasonable inspection safeguards was in sight. Opposition from Washington by hard-line opponents, much of it on Capitol Hill, closed this door on both occasions.

There is no reason to believe the president has changed his view of the need for tests unless the Soviets quickly agree to an inspected test ban that could win the approval of the Senate in a treaty. In lengthy discussions with the British the date of May 1 has been set for the start of the tests to be held on Christmas Island with its extensive British installations. The current belief is that this date will be adhered to.

Those arguing for no change—they represent a view somewhere between the military and the go-slow advocates—say that with the strontium coming down for two or three weeks in April there will be time to make the world understand that this is of Soviet origin. While the president has said that the new American tests will be as clean and as limited as possible within the frame of military necessity they will add to the cumulative deposit of fallout, and so will the later series which the Soviets have said they inevitably must conduct. That is the record to be written in the bones of human beings now living and in the genes of those still to be born.

Iceland's Difficulties

BY WALT MAKDATOR

ONCE more the small island of Iceland finds itself sitting between the devil and the deep blue sea—or more accurately, sitting very consciously midway between New York and Moscow.

The government at Reykjavik has traditionally tried to keep the island politically neutral, but because of its strategic position in the north, the world has just as traditionally forced Iceland to take a stand and name its ally.

In 1940 Iceland announced it would remain neutral in the Second World War. Since Denmark had fallen to Germany and was under occupation the Icelandic government decided it would be responsible for its own foreign affairs, previously handled by Denmark.

But neutrality was impossible. Across the North Sea, the island looked most tempting to the Germans. It was strategically located just 1,500 miles from the coast of Labrador, and therefore within air striking distance of North America.

Canada and the United States became alarmed in 1939 when Germany asked Iceland to consider it a "most-favored nation" and grant the Luftwaffe Aviation Company an air base at Reykjavik. Even the threat from a German invasion was eliminated—along with Iceland's neutrality. Many Icelanders resented this "protection," demanding that the world respect its neutrality. Others resented it because they sympathized with Germany. This was especially true with the professional class, since many of the doctors and scientists had received their education in Germany, and felt strong ties with its ambitions and culture.

In 1944 Iceland became a totally independent republic. At the end of the war, Icelanders tried once more to follow a neutral path.

Again the world situation would not permit it. Iceland was pulled East and West by warring Communist and the Free World.

Between 1955 and 1956 it appeared the Reds might be winning. Communists infiltrated the Reykjavik government and jeopardized Iceland's membership in NATO.

In 1956, especially, the government included many Communists, who demanded that U.S. forces leave Iceland. The Nazi threat over, the U.S. troops remained to protect the island from the Soviet Union. It was again a vital military base.

Although the Reds in government wanted the U.S. troops sent away, they did not insist that Iceland sever its membership with NATO. But NATO authorities did not favor handing over classified information to Iceland when Communism in the executive might gain access to it.

In the 1959 election, the Reds lost 25 per cent of their votes in Iceland, most going to the conservative Independence Party.

The trend toward the West continued despite a severe strain in 1960 over the 12-mil-limit fishing dispute with Britain.

Shadow Cabinet

By PETER DEMPSON from Ottawa

BESIDES attending to his parliamentary duties, Liberal leader Lester B. Pearson is undoubtedly giving some thought these days to two additional tasks:

Creation of a strong "shadow" government, to provide a workable alternative to the ruling Conservatives in the event the Liberals win the coming election.

Development of an effective strategy for the campaign, now expected within a matter of weeks.

The selection of a cabinet—whether it is "real" or "shadow"—rests entirely with Mr. Pearson. It is his prerogative alone. A formidable array of Liberal candidates, already nominated or soon to be, should make this task as much easier. But they will have to be elected, of course. For some, this may be difficult.

Insiders say that Mr. Pearson has already tentatively selected most of his shadow cabinet. He has also worked out his basic campaign plans.

Top men on Mr. Pearson's team are Paul Martin, 36, the leading choice to become external affairs minister, and J. W. Pickersgill, 36, who probably would again become minister of citizenship and immigration. He held this post in the St. Laurent government.

Mr. Martin, also a former member of the St. Laurent administration, held the health portfolio.

Stated key cabinet positions, too, would be Lionel Chevrier, Paul Hellyer, 36, and Hazen Argue, 41, who recently defected to the Liberals from the CCF-NDP.

Mr. Chevrier, transport minister in the St. Laurent government, quite likely would again get the same post. Because of his long parliamentary experience, he would also be House leader—a job he now holds for the Liberal Opposition.

Mr. Hellyer probably would be named associate defence minister, if not defence minister. And Mr. Argue undoubtedly would get the agriculture portfolio, because of his knowledge of Western farming.

The Pearson line-up: Prime minister—Lester B. Pearson, 64, MP for Algoma East.

External affairs—Paul Martin, 36, MP for Essex East.

Transport—Lionel Chevrier, 36, MP for Montreal-Laurier.

Immigration—J. W. Pickersgill, 36, MP for Bonaville.

Finance—Walter Gordon, 44, of Toronto.

Defence—C. M. Drury, 48, of Montreal.

Associate defence—Paul Hellyer, 36, MP for Toronto-Trinity.

Trade—Mitchell Sharp, 50, of Toronto, former deputy trade minister.

Agriculture—Hazen Argue, 41, MP for Assiniboia.

Natural resources—William Bendickson, 50, MP for Kenora-Rainy River.

Public works—Maurice Bourget, 54, MP for Lévis, and former parliamentary secretary to public works minister in St. Laurent government.

Postmaster general—Arlus Denis, 54, MP for Saint Denis, Que.

Veterans affairs—General Charles Foulkes, 39, former chairman of Canadian chiefs of staff.

Defence production—George McRath, 53, MP for Ottawa West.

Labor—Miss Julia LaMarsh, 37, MP for Niagara Falls.

Secretary of state—Maurice Lamontagne, 50, special adviser to Mr. Pearson.

Mines—Francis L. (Bud) John, 47, former Manitoba minister of industry.

Fisheries—Alan MacEachen, 40, former MP for Inverness-Richmond, N.S., and also an adviser to Mr. Pearson.

Forestry—Herbert J. Robichaud, 50, MP for Gloucester, N.B.

Mr. Pearson still lacks suitable candidates for the important posts of national health and justice. Since his "shadow" team still hasn't anyone from Alberta or Prince Edward Island, he's hoping that he would have adequate representation from those provinces after the election, to take over those jobs.

Efficiency Expert

From The Ottawa Journal

Nothing sacred to science?

Anyone who has ever been a child knows that ice cream tastes better when licked from a cone than when eaten from a spoon. We had always thought that this phenomenon was a manifestation of the magic of childhood.

But now comes Dr. Howard K. Keesee of Cleveland to explain that it's just a matter of the distribution of the taste buds on the tongue. He writes in the periodical Dental Survey that "the tasting areas of the tongue are: sweet at the tip of the tongue, sour at the outer edges; salty on the edges near the tip; bitter on the top near the back." So when a child licks an ice cream cone with the tip of his tongue, he is merely tasting it with the best taste buds for the job. He is not a charmed creature, just a little efficiency expert.

Meat rationing, a carryover from the Second World War, came to an end in Canada 15 years ago today—in 1947.

When it was introduced in mid-1943 the ration ranged between one and two and one-half pounds per person per week depending on the kind of meat.

LETTERS to the Editor

To be considered for publication in whole or in part letters must be on subjects of general interest, not more than 250 words in length, and, if signed with a pen-name, must be accompanied by the writer's name and address.

History is the foundation of a city upon which to base its knowledge of progress. History teaches a sense of responsibility and appreciation to the government which means security to a nation.

The city hall is an important building being centrally located, and one of few buildings to be claimed of historical value in Victoria. It has an attractive exterior and could have new value and rare charm with a collection of historical paintings or historical subjects, and later on as an historical art museum and library . . .

Fuel Thieves

Residents of the Esquimalt area have recently been subjected to the annoyance of having gasoline "expropriated" from their cars.

Actually, the word is theft, but expropriation sounds so much more timely, and, in fact, may soon become one of the most popular words in our language.

There is, of course, no excuse for stealing, for a thief, whatever the extent of his crime, big or small, remains a thief as long as he lives. He must live with that fact and acknowledge it daily as he looks at himself in the mirror.

However, these particular "expropriators" must have had some wee strain of conscience, some spurt of moral integrity lurking somewhere, for at least they did not take all the gas, but left enough in each car to see its owner to a gas station.

A VICTIM.

Annual Art Show

So that city officials will not be embarrassed in having to refuse what will probably be a flood of paintings from local artists to be hung in the City Hall, I think it would be a good idea to have one local artists' showing a year in which one picture would be chosen by art experts as worthy of a place in the mayor's office or other space made available for this purpose.

This would be an honor conferred on those artists who, like Mr. Herbert Stoney, have proved themselves in the world of art.

Liberal MLA Charges:

Transfer of BCE Pension Fund Could Help Pay Peace Project

A charge that the government could use about $15,000,000 in B.C. Electric Company pension plan funds for development of the Peace River power project sparked another furious uproar in the legislature last night.

The debate had its hilarious moments.

The bombshell was dropped by Alan Macfarlane (L-Oak Bay) who said provisions in the legislation merging the BCE and B.C. Power Commission would see the transfer of pension funds to a general revenue account.

IMPARTIAL PERSON

He moved an amendment that the pension fund trustee be a completely impartial person not connected with the government or power agency.

Government members promptly charged it was merely another partisan Liberal political attack.

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston, a director of the BCE, said under the pension fund formerly operated by the private company, very high pensions were paid to top officials while very low pensions were given rank-and-file employees.

And, he pledged, the government's superannuation commissioner would be in charge of the BCE pension fund in future.

Education Minister Peterson said the people who wanted an independent trustee were "not the workmen but some of the officials of the B.C. Power Corporation."

And, he added, spokesmen for the corporation had stated the Liberal party would be bringing the question up in the legislature.

"This government is running scared," stormed Liberal Leader Perrault. "It's resorting to smears of the lowest kind."

Throughout the Liberal-Socialist battle, Opposition Leader Strachan remained calm.

"It is significant," he said, "that the two free enterprise parties are at each other's throats the roughest when it

A new north-south transportation concept, replacing the east-west pattern that has developed between Vancouver Island and the mainland, was advocated yesterday by Dan Campbell, Social Credit MLA for Comox.

In an address to the Victoria Chamber of Commerce transportation and harbor group at the Colonial Inn, Mr. Campbell called for the development of regional rather than purely community approaches to the Georgia Strait transportation complex.

LOOK EAST

"Over the years, our east-coast settlements have traditionally remained linked with Vancouver on the mainland rather than southern Vancouver Island," he said, "and even our closest offshore islands look east for their commerce, rather than south."

As recently as 10 years ago, Mr. Campbell said, northern communities along the east coast of the Island were connected with the mainland instead of each other. This connection provided commercial and travel ties directly to Vancouver rather than southern portions of the Island.

NOT DEVELOPED

"Because of this, we haven't yet developed a single effective community on the Island north of Campbell River," he said.

Blame for the situation, Mr.

Campbell said, must be laid at two doorsteps. Provincial and federal governments have never developed a co-ordinated approach to the problem, he said, and private industry active in the southern half of the Island has made no concerted drive for transportation facilities linking the east-coast Island communities, cover Island becomes a logical link in north-south travel between northwestern British Columbia and the lower mainland.

Solid Increase Seen in Taxes

horizon is the carry-over surplus from last year—it is expected to be a little more than last year's surplus of $117,000.

Aldermen spent all yesterday attempting to prune the budget. One group met in the morning, the other in the afternoon.

LONG SESSION

Seriousness of the situation is shown by plans for today's meeting. Aldermen will gather in city hall committee room at 2 p.m. and work through into the night.

They will have dinner sent in and eat as they work.

Big problems facing aldermen include a $125,000 item to cover wage increases for city employees, $100,000 earmarked for a program to rid the city of blighted buildings and depressed areas, $70,000 for a new firehall near the Point Ellice bridge and $50,000 already being spent by the Victoria Centennial Celebrations Society.

NOT INCLUDED

Budget estimates presented so far do not include the city share of the Greater Victoria school board budget, health costs or welfare costs.

But the interim total, presented yesterday, is $7,316,035. The school, health and welfare costs are expected to add at least $3,000,000 to that figure.

Overall total will be above last year's $10,000,000 budget but the mill increase will be forced by a lower assessment total and a lower return for the mill. Removal of B.C. Electric and Black Ball Ferries properties from the tax roll at the order of the provincial government has not helped the situation.

ALMOST EXHAUSTED

Revenue from the sale of land and property which reverted to the city for non-payment of taxes has enabled Victoria to pay its way for 10 years, but that source is almost exhausted.

Budget details, with totals in ordinary and special expenditures and with changes in brackets, are:

General government, $301,247 (up $9,798); fire department, $645,040 (up $6,720); $80,400 (up $70,520); police, $719,799 (up $38,192); street lighting, $157,725 (up $26,581); $65,172 (up $58,263); public works, $398,540 (up $14,887); $324,388 (up $195,124); sanitation, $576,440 (up $37,229); $64,700 (up $40,200); water distribution, $695,060 (down $9,341); parks, $449,599 (up $25,199); $136,350 (up $32,885); community services, $26,570 (up $2,517); debt charges, $1,018,700 (down $12,800); library, $342,480 (up $6,224); grants, $157,946 (up $10,465); urban renewal, $100,000; sundry, $289,004 (down $1,865); contingencies, $50,000.

Come in and kick it around.

Pay us a visit and go a few rounds with a Volkswagen. You can rock it, shake it, slam the doors and bounce on the bumper. (If you hear a squeak, see your cobbler.)

Or, if you prefer, you can have a quiet chat with one of our salesmen. Either way you'll get the same information: the VW is built to take a beating. No rattles, no loose parts, nothing but solid car. (To make sure every Volkswagen is perfect, our factory employs 5,000 inspectors.)

But don't take our word for it. Take the VW for a ride and be your own inspector.

Try shutting the door with the window closed. It won't be easy because the Volkswagen is practically airtight. Try it again with the window open. You'll hear the solid sound of a car that's built to last.

Look under the dashboard and inside the door jamb. You'll find the same amount of paint we put on the outside: 4 coats. (We have to be ready for anything. Volkswagens are sold around the world and driven in every climate.)

Be our guest. Come in and give the VW a good going over. You'll find you can kick it, but you can't knock it.

DaVinci Auction Postponed

LONDON (UPI) — The Royal Academy has postponed its auction of a Leonardo da Vinci chalk sketch in hopes the cartoon can be sold privately and kept in the country.

Public uproar over planned auction astonished academy officials, who said almost nobody ever bothered to look at the sketch in the museum.

Many newspapers complained that some wealthy American museum would buy the cartoon.

Polaris Planning Rival Gas Pipeline

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

Westcoast Transmission Ltd. may not have things all its own way in the pipelining of natural gas from the fabulous new fields in northeast B.C.

A rival Canadian group, headquartered in Calgary, is trying to get into the act, and at the moment is making application at Ottawa for a federal charter.

Name of the proposed new company is Polaris Pipelines, a brain-child of Canadian Industrial Gas Ltd. and its subsidiary, Interprovincial Utilities.

The board of the new company, headed by M. J. Strong of Canadian Industrial Gas, is said to be all-Canadian.

Polaris hopes to run a 36-inch pipeline from the Fort Nelson area in a south-east direction, with a view to exporting in the U.S. Great Lakes area — a distance of about 2,000 miles.

Although incorporation is only the first of many steps which the new company would have to take, its so-far sketchy plans have had the effect of downgrading the market value of shares of Westcoast and Trans Canada Pipelines.

It was announced yesterday to be the mystery purchaser of Foundation Company of Canada Ltd. shares for whom the National Trust has been acting.

Slater is stated to have bought more than 500,000 Foundation shares at 14 1/2, giving it more than 42 per cent interest.

A few months ago Slater bought controlling interest in Burlington Steel, a rival Ontario steel producer.

Foundation of Canada is one of the country's leading industrial and commercial construction firms.

GAS OUTLOOK GOOD

B.A. Oil Company made a little more for its shareholders in 1961 than in 1960 although earnings from sales of refined products were lower. Net profit was $32,636,000 ($1.59 a share) compared with $30,803,000 ($1.51).

E. L. Loughney, president, said improved earnings were due to higher production in Canada and the U.S.

He was optimistic about the future of Canada's natural gas industry, estimating 1962 sales will increase by at least 30 per cent to 2,100,000,000 cubic feet a day. He also expects Canadian oil sales to rise by 75,000 barrels to 720,000 barrels a day as a result of expansion of Canadian markets.

R. M. Willmott, president, says results to date for 1962 are again better than they were in 1961 but competition from banks was growing in intensity.

Hong Kong Gyp In Tin Sin Kuk

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCMP Monday described a new confidence game—the tin sin—surreptitiously translated, “the heavenly swindle,” now being pulled off in Hong Kong with such consummate skill that victims are left reeling in confusion.

The RCMP’s purpose in revealing details of the fraud was to warn Canadians what might happen to them and their bank rolls in the British Crown colony.

OWN GREED

The fraud is based on the victim’s own greed and gullibility by convincing him that he can make a lot of quick, easy money by cheating at tin sin. In the end, the victim himself is cheated.

Usually six members of a syndicate take part — the “speaker,” the “pulling hand,” the “old man,” the “money hand,” the “tail” who is introduced to the victim, as Hakka Tsai, and finally the “assistant.”

GETS IN TOUCH

The “speaker” first gets in touch with the victim, winning his confidence. Then the “pulling hand” enters the picture, and ultimately brings up the question of Hakka Tsai, said to be losing a lot of money on gambling, liquor and women.

TULLING HAND

The “pulling hand” persuades the victim that it would be a good idea to teach Hakka Tsai a lesson by cheating him, later giving him back half his money and splitting the other half. The “old man” is brought in to teach the victim how to cheat.

TEACH LESSON

Hakka Tsai is brought in and pretends to be completely fooled. He loses some money, then talks of bigger stakes. The victim is persuaded to put all of his money into a pot with the others in a concerted effort to teach Hakka Tsai his lesson.

Also, the victim finds himself losing his own money and that of his “friends.”

CAN DO BETTER

The “friends” convince the victim he can do better next time with money obtained by mortgaging property or borrowing. Feeling genuinely sorry for the losses in the first game, the victim agrees. Only when he loses the second time does he suspect the fraud.

ENTER HIP SAU

Enter the “assistant,” otherwise known as “hip sau.” He gets in touch with the victim, explains how he was cheated and offers to negotiate with the syndicate for return of part of the money.

After weeks or months, during which the syndicate’s trail is obscured by a system of IOUs and the participation of crooked lawyers, the victim gets 10 to 20 per cent of his money back and consoles himself that it could have been worse.

“In this manner, the victim is completely bamboozled, con-used and demoralized,” said the RCMP, quoting Hong Kong police. Few victims ever report their misfortune to the police and greed.

New Bridge Planned For St. Lawrence

QUEBEC CITY (UPI)—Premier Jean Lesage yesterday announced plans for the construction of a bridge to span the St. Lawrence River at Three Rivers, some 75 miles northeast of Montreal.

It will only be the second bridge to span the river east of Montreal. The other bridge crosses the river at Quebec City while three bridges and a fourth currently under construction link Montreal Island with the south shore.

Gifts for ‘Isolation’

TORONTO (UPI)—Ontario Health Minister Matthew Dymond yesterday announced medical and dental bursaries to train personnel for the province’s isolated areas.

Health department estimates presented to the legislature made provision for 20 medical and ten dental bursaries each worth $1,000. Medical undergraduates would receive the money for four years and dental students for three years.

Dymond said the bursary would be an outright gift, but the recipient would have to practice for two years in a designated isolated area.

He said the urban areas of the province were well served by doctors and dentists. Ontario, at the end of 1960, had one doctor to 280 persons and one dentist to 2,400, about 10 per cent higher than the national average.

U.S. Turns Over Radar Base

KAMLOOPS (CP) — The RCAF ensign replaced the Stars and Stripes over Mount Lolo radar base 15 miles north-east of here last week in a change of command.

The base, under command of the U.S. army air force since it became operative almost five years ago, was turned over to the RCAF.

More Eruptions May Kill Island

LONDON (UPI) — A Royal Society expedition report reaching here yesterday says more volcanic eruptions may make the island of Tristan da Cunha uninhabitable forever. Two hundred islanders were brought to England after violent eruptions last year.

To meet the demands of Canadian hospitals the Canadian Red Cross must collect more than 60,000 bottles of blood in 1962.

EDMONTON (CP)—The RCAF has completed an airlift of supplies to Alert, N.W.T., Canada's most northern weather station, the air force said Monday. Two transports flew 900 tons of supplies from Thule, Greenland.

Plane Disappears

Two Vanish in North

WINNIPEG (CP)—Three planes were to be added to the search late Monday for an aircraft with two men aboard down on the barren in the Northwest Territories.

Two Dakotas were sent out by the RCAF search and rescue unit in Winnipeg while the RCMP volunteered an Otter from Port Smith, about 100 miles from Uranium City on the northwest tip of the Saskatchewan border.

The missing plane, a twin-engine Beechcraft, made a forced landing Sunday after running short of fuel and hitting bad weather on a 650-mile flight from Cambridge Bay, N.W.T., to Uranium City. An Albatross had been in the search for the missing aircraft since early Monday.

The pilots' last names only have been released. They were identified as Moore and Buray, both pilots with considerable flying experience.

Elderly City Couple Dies Last Rites Slated Today

An elderly couple who died within hours of each other Saturday will be buried together today.

Both Mrs. Winnifred Elsie Harding and her husband John Harding entered hospital at the same time seven weeks ago.

Mary's Priory, Langford, was followed by that of her husband in Veterans' Hospital 15 hours later.

Born in England, Mr. Harding, 82, had been a resident of Victoria since 1912 and was employed in the Victoria waterworks department.

Also born in England, Mrs. Harding, 74, came to Victoria in 1944. She was Mr. Harding's second wife. The couple made their home in Sooke.

A veteran of the Boer War, Mr. Harding served with the 66th Royal Berkshire Regiment. He was a member of the Sooke branch of the Royal Canadian Legion and the Over-60 Club.

Mrs. Harding was active in Sea Cadet work.

Mr. Harding is survived by his three sons, William and Frank in Victoria, and John in Halifax, and a daughter, Ellen Lawson, of the Northwest Territories, 10 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held in McCall Bros' funeral home at 3:30 p.m. today, Rev. Douglas Kendall officiating.

Stroke Fatal

City Caretaker Dies After Daring Rescue

A 69-year-old man, who was rescued by firemen from an apartment block where he had suffered a stroke while repairing a television aerial, died in St. Joseph's Hospital Sunday.

Firemen had to use an aerial ladder in the rescue of George Carr, caretaker of Venture Apartments, 735 Pandora, after he was found unconscious on the roof of the building Saturday night.

It is believed he lay unconscious on the roof for at least two hours before he was found.

The fire department's ladder crew and inhalator men strapped him in a stretcher and lowered him 50 feet to the ground to carry out the rescue.

Ex-Victorian Dies In California Home

Longtime resident of Victoria, William Alfred Cameron, 67, died Saturday in his winter home in Palm Desert, Calif., after a long illness.

Mr. Cameron organized and managed the Cameron Wood and Coal Company until it was sold in 1946.

He came to Victoria from New Mexico with his family in 1907, and went to Victoria High School and later to private school in Tennessee.

The well-known city businessman is survived by his widow Hilma, three brothers, James and George of Victoria and Don, of Hollywood, Calif.

Paret Alive But Hopes Slim, Governor Gets Fight Report

NEW YORK (AP) — State investigators rushed a report Monday night to Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller on Saturday's championship prize fight that left welterweight Benny (Kid) Paret near death. Doctors said all has been done that can be done for the Cuban-born boxer for the time being.

The New York State Athletic Commission, which policies professional boxing in the state, called witnesses, viewed films of the fight, then turned in a report for transmission to Rockefeller in Albany.

The governor's office had no comment on the findings Monday night. Rockefeller earlier said the violent beating of Paret in full view of millions on television left him "deeply concerned and disturbed."

NO COMMENT
Paret, who lost his world welterweight title to Emile Griffith in a grudge fight at Madison Square Garden, has been in a deep coma since he was carried from the ring on a

STAY IN CONTINUOUS MOTION

Set up a pre-shot procedure to follow each time. This will help defeat nervous tension. I always walk up to the ball from behind, survey the situation and then select a club. It's easier to get a line on the angle of the shot from behind the ball.

Once the club is selected, I take a position just short of my final stance. My feet will be closer together than they will be when I get ready to swing, but my grip will be in place. I like to look down the fairway and picture my shot flight. Although I don't take a practice swing, many golfers do and feel it helps. Of course, before I swing, I wobble the clubhead by moving it over the ball. This is all part of my system not to let my muscles tense up.

The perfect remedy for golf ailments! Send $15 plus postage, return envelope to Arnold Palmer, c/o this newspaper.

McNulty Lost to Shamrocks; Hopes Now Pinned on Gordon

Victoria Shamrocks, who thought they had drawn three aces to a shaky hand in their bid for a comeback in the Inter-City Lacrosse League, looked again yesterday and found themselves down to a pair.

BACK INJURY
Jim McNulty, a league-scoring champion when he was with Nanaimo in 1956, informed the club last night that he will not be here this season. McNulty, who had transferred from the Ontario

Lacrosse Association to the Shamrocks, hurt his back while playing hockey in the east and will be out of action.

That leaves Don Ashbee and Skip MacKay, and the Shamrocks' chances of survival this season could well rest in the hands of league-commissioner Tommy Gordon.

Midnight last night was the deadline for inter-team player transfers. Ashbee and MacKay's transfer applications are in, but Nanaimo hasn't released either player.

IN HIS HANDS
That leaves the decision squarely up to Gordon, who will decide April 15 whether to let the two come to Victoria or inform them they must play in Nanaimo or nowhere.

"We've got to have them," coach Arnie Ferguson said last night. "Without them, we're back where we finished last year. That isn't enough to get anywhere in this league."

POUNCE APPLY
Gordon said last night that he had received four transfer applications as of 9 p.m., but that there was a chance of more by midnight. The four are Ashbee and MacKay from Nanaimo to Victoria; Don Sepka from New Westminster to Victoria; and Bob Bateman from Nanaimo to New Westminster.

He would not comment on the chances any have of being accepted.

Casper Wins Doral Open

MIAMI Fla.—Bill Casper, Jr., won the $50,000 Doral Country Club open golf tournament yesterday after rookie Paul Bondeson missed a 10-foot putt on the final green that would have given him a tie and forced a playoff.

Casper shot a one-under-par 71 for 283, five under par. Bondeson slipped to a 73 on the final round, Casper collected $8,000, Bondeson $4,000.

Jack Nicklaus, former U.S. amateur champion on his rookie tour of the pro circuit, finished one stroke back of Bondeson, and veteran Ben Hogan and Ted Kroll tied for fourth.

Gary Player and Arnold Palmer had 282 and tied for 14th.

Coffey Signs

EDMONTON (CP) — End Tommy-Joe Coffey, out of football last season, has signed a contract with Edmonton Eskimos of the Western Conference.

Coffey, 26-year-old graduate of West Texas State, played the 1959 and 1960 seasons with the Eskimos before going into business in Vancouver.

Call of the South Answered by Police

BALTIMORE (AP)—Wearing a baseball cap and carrying a bat, radio and two suitcases, the traveller obviously was headed for the spring training camps in the south.

"I want a room for four days," he told assistant hotel manager Clifford Crook as he walked up to the registration desk Saturday.

He had ready cash, a roll of $168. But he didn't get the room.

The fellow on the move was eight-year-old Craig Hopwood, a third-grader at Baltimore's Westview School. He explained that life was getting "very monotonous" with spring's arrival.

He had packed, borrowed the $168 from his father's trousers, slipped out of the house at 5 a.m. and hailed a taxi for a ride to the hotel. Crook called police, who called Craig's dad to come and get him.

That leaves Don Ashbee and Skip MacKay, and the Shamrocks' chances of survival this season could well rest in the hands of league-commissioner Tommy Gordon.

Canadiens, Leafs the Picks But Opponents Are Healthier

The favorites are hurting and the underdogs are bristling with health for tonight's opening games of the best-of-seven Stanley Cup hockey semi-finals.

At Montreal, Chicago Black Hawks meet the Canadiens in the semi for the fourth straight year. To get a chance to defend the cup they won last season for the first time in 22 years they must repeat last season's minor miracle—beat the team the odds say will take it all.

At Toronto, it will be New York Rangers, on ice where they didn't win a point all season, against a slumping and hurting bunch of Maple Leafs who coach Punch Imlach charges "played like a bunch of clowns" in the last part of the National Hockey League season.

Those are the battle lines, and the sites will be the same Thursday night in the second game of each series.

Last night, the situation was this: Canadiens, who won a fifth consecutive NHL title and scored a record 250 goals in doing it, were 11-goal favorites tonight and 12-5 choices for the series.

FIVE ARE BURT
But they had their problems. Henri Richard is out with a broken arm, Lou Fontana, the club captain, and centre Don Marshall, who scored seven goals against the Hawks this year, were both bothered by groin injuries.

A chest injury to Dickie Moore and a mild shoulder separation to Jean Beliveau have slowed both veterans down considerably.

In contrast, the Hawks had everyone ready but Ron Murphy, still doubtful. Ken Wharram, sidelined with a groin injury, is now fully recovered.

SIX SHARPshooters
Canadiens have the edge in firepower with six 20-goal men ready—Claude Provost (33), Bernie Geoffrion (23), Gilles Tremblay (32), Bill Hicke (20), Bobby Rousseau (21) and Ralph Backstrom (27). Hawks had three—superstar Bobby Hull with a record-tying 50, Stan Mikita (25), and ex-Canadien Ab McDonald (22).

Toronto goes into the semi-final with a five-game winless streak and two key men—defenceman Carl Brewer and winger Bert Olmstead—sitting on the sidelines.

Brewer, rated a cinch for an all-star berth, suffered a severe charley-horse nine days ago and just got out of hospital yesterday.

Both he and Olmstead are out for at least the semi-final, though Brewer might be back if the Leafs make the final.

Imlach has chosen veteran Johnny Bower, who made 50 stops Sunday, over Don Simmons for tonight's game.

Rangers, in the playoffs for the first time in four seasons, are so healthy they have one extra man and must decide who to drop.

Yesterday in Oklahoma, where they trained to escape wet-weather and ticket-hounds, Major honors went to a rink from the RCAF station at Comox skipped by Tom Caldwell. It won the "B" primary.

with its 9-6 win over Duncan's Gary Merrett in the final also made the Grand Aggregate trophies.

Caldwell's rink compiled a 7-1 record in the two primary events, losing only to Chuck Melanson, also of the Comox RCAF. Caldwell evened the score by edging Melanson, 7-6, in the "B" primary semi-final.

Jim Gordon's Courtenay rink won the "A" primary, defeating Bob Fuller of Nanaimo, 9-8, in the final. Gordon didn't have to throw his last rock in this one although he headed home tied at 8-8, getting one well covered, but he made one of the bonspiel's clutch shots in the semi-final against Jim Tang's Victoria rink, skipped by Jim Dickson.

All but bottled up on the last end as the Victoria rink managed to plug up the front and Dickson drew around perfectly behind three guards to the middle of the front eight-foot ring, Gordon had only a raise when it came to last rock. He bumped his own rock almost 10 feet right to the middle of the four-foot ring.

Glen Harper of Duncan, who was off to a rocky bonspiel start, broke the CVCC chance to sweep by defeating Les McKenzie, 9-8, in the final of "A" secondary. But Courtenay rinks won the other two events, Ken Aitken besting Don Perriman, 9-8, in "B" secondary and Lorne Vanetta outscoring Frank Jedrejch of Nanaimo, 13-10, in "C" event.

Television Fare

Tonight's semi-final between Chicago Black Hawks and Montreal Canadiens will be picked up in program on channels 2 and 8 at 6:30 p.m., as will the Toronto-New York game Thursday night.

Any semi-final game that could decide the series will be carried in its entirety. Otherwise, games will be picked up one hour after starting time.

All final games will be televised from the opening whistle.

Hull Gets 50th and Trophy As Andy Settles for $1,000

Bobby Hull didn't quite reach his twin goals of setting a new National Hockey League scoring record and winning undisputed claim to the 1961-62 scoring championship in the season's last game on Sunday night, but the 23-year-old Chicago winger came close.

He scored a record-tying 50th goal early in the first period at New York, and the point gave him possession of the Ross Trophy, awarded each season to the player who wins the NHL point title.

But New York's Andy Bathgate matched Hull total of 84 points and the Ross Trophy was awarded on the basis that Hull had scored more goals.

Bathgate had 28 goals and tied a league record by producing 56 assists.

However, it was announced last night that both players will receive $1,000 from the league. Normally, the winner of the Ross Trophy gets $1,000 and the runner-up gets $500.

Hull's goal, on a quick backhander after getting a pass from Reg Fleming, made him the third player to score 50

NHL goals in one season, but he did it earlier than the other two.

Maurice Richard got his 50 in the 50-game season of 1944-45, and was 24 when he made it. Bernie Geoffrion was 30 when he matched Richard's total last season.

MADE IT TENNIS
Sunday's game in New York, won by the Rangers, 4-1, would have been meaningless but for the battle between Bathgate and Hull for the point title and Hull's effort to tie or break the record.

Both players were watched closely as teammates tried to help their Ross Trophy candidates. Fleming stuck to Bathgate like glue but the Ranger star did manage to get away for one goal, a little more than five minutes after Hull had got his historic fifth.

Hull's goal was the 10th he had scored against the Rangers. He also managed to get 10 against the Canadiens and Detroit and he averaged one a game in the 14 games the Hawks played against Boston Bruins, Toronto Maple Leafs held Hull to six goals.

Hull scored only 13 goals in the first half of the season, and with its 9-6 win over Duncan's Gary Merrett in the final also made the Grand Aggregate

Maris Brightens Up—at Plate, Too

Major Maris turned over a new leaf on Sunday and coincidentally, hit his first two home runs of the spring-training season.

Criticized for his early reaction to all the attention being paid to him, Maris willingly signed autographs for young fans and joked with the older ones before Sunday's game against Cincinnati Reds in Tampa. Then he went out and produced the game's three first runs with homers in the first and third innings.

AND HECTOR

Hector Lopez hit a three-run homer in the sixth as the New York Yankees bested the Reds 6-3, as four of their pitchers combined in a four-hitter.

Monday saw Mickey Mantle and John Blanchard hit home runs as the Yankees took a 6-4, extra-inning win from the Detroit Tigers, who are again expected to be their toughest opposition.

Meanwhile, Baltimore Orioles, a club that hasn't had too much muscle, unloaded for $1 hits in an 18-8 romp over Casey Stengel's New York Mets.

Third-baseman Brooks Robinson drove in six runs for the Orioles, who had five home runs.

New York (AP) — The Yankees' new star, Mickey Mantle, hit a three-run homer in the sixth inning to help the Yankees beat the Cincinnati Reds 6-3 in Tampa, Fla., Sunday.

Bennett Bid 'Immoral'

The former associate defence minister in the Liberal government, Paul Hellyer, yesterday attacked as "shocking and immoral" the B.C. government's new power legislation.

The legislation is designed to ban court action arising from compensation to be paid by the province for shares in B.C. Electric.

"It is changing the rules... part way through the game. This to me is the offensive part of it," he said.

City Cafe Brawl Cost Owner $30

A brawl in a city cafe cost the proprietor about $30 in unpaid food bills, city magistrate's court was told yesterday.

Fined $50 for creating a disturbance by fighting in Macmillan's Restaurant, 617 George, at 1 a.m. March 19 were Robert Gibb and William Pepper.

Cafe proprietor I. J. A. Pedersen, 2918 Quadra, told the court he had refused to serve the pair, but had allowed them in to the washroom.

He said he found Pepper and Gibb fighting with a man at the door of the washroom. During the brawl, a number of customers left and "I lost $25 to $30 worth of food," said Mr. Pedersen.

Saanich finance committee last night voted a grant of about $350 as its share in $1,000 asked of the intermunicipal committee for expenses towards sending the Greater Victoria Schools Orchestra to Calgary for a music festival.

Monty Aldous, general manager of the B.C. government ferry system, was chosen chairman of the judging committee for the Junior Chamber of Commerce Miss Victoria contest last night.

Other judges chosen were Logan Mayhew, Peter Bruton, Mrs. A. E. Walters and Miss Elizabeth Forbes.

Robert Thompson, national Social Credit party leader, will take a day's rest in Victoria Sunday before leaving for engagements in Penticton and Trail, April 2.

Oak Bay council wants the federal government to lengthen the Turkey Head breakwater while crews are restoring the eroded beach at Glenlyon Preparatory School.

Chairman of the works and parks committee, Coun. Fred Robinson said last night the present breakwater protects only the dock installations at the boathouse. "There is no protection for boats at anchor," he said.

A fall from a lumber truck to the cement at Ogden Point about 2:35 p.m. yesterday sent Genty Singh, 28, of 630 Dundas, to St. Joseph's Hospital. He was suffering undetermined back injuries, but was reported in satisfactory condition last night.

Victoria Bar Association yesterday said passage of Bills 84 and 85 now before the legislature would constitute a "grave abuse of power" by the government.

Lloyd McKenzie, president, said the association's executive March 23 passed a resolution condemning the bills as being "offensive to the accepted rights and interests of the people and as a grave abuse of power."

Saanich municipal employees will be asked to reconsider their decision not to enter a float in Victoria's centennial Victoria Day parade.

Councillors were told last night the employees who donated their own time to make the float had gone $400 in the red last year and "have had enough of it."

Tales of the old days will be told again during a reunion of students of James Bay School in South Park School at 7:30 p.m., April 13.

Veterans' Land Act Extension to 1968 Hailed by Chatterton

OTTAWA—George Chatterton, MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, in the House of Commons last night hailed the government's extension of the Veterans' Land Act by six years to October, 1968.

The new bill, which got its initial reading, is also designed to increase by $2,000 to $12,000 maximum loans available to veterans with smallholdings, and it creates new loans up to the same figure for those on family farms.

Mr. Chatterton, former V.L.A. administrator for southern Vancouver Island, earlier this year called on Parliament to extend deadline for the act which had been set for next September. He said last night the government should now consider extending it beyond 1968.

All of the 1,200 veterans in Esquimalt-Saanich who have already taken advantage of V.L.A. provisions, as well as those who will get new loans, are entitled to the full maximum amount under the new bill, said Mr. Chatterton. He termed this "an important departure."

A meeting of the Cerebral Palsy Parents Group will be held Thursday at 8 p.m. in Newstead Hall, Fort Street.

When Mrs. Norma McDonald of the Oak Bay Beach Hotel will show slides of scenes behind the Iron Curtain, and a society film will be shown.

Crash Kills Wife Millionaire Hurt

NANAIMO—Mrs. Ruth West, wife of a millionaire resident of Qualicum Beach, died instantly about 8:30 a.m. Monday in a car-truck collision near the Pleasant Valley service station outside Wellington.

Her husband, Oliver West, former president of Canadair Ltd., suffered head, chest and leg injuries and is in Nanaimo General Hospital.

Their car apparently crashed into a rear corner of a semi-trailer truck loaded with concrete blocks.

The truck had stopped at the side of the road for repairs after losing a wheel.

Driver of the Evans, Coleman truck was identified by police as James Waugh of Nanaimo.

An army truck which came suddenly on the scene shortly after the collision swerved to one side and went over a 40-foot bank. Driver Pte. G. D. Gould, FPCL, was not hurt.

Youth Unconscious

NANAIMO—Colin Roberts, 350 Hunter, was reported still unconscious and in serious condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital in Victoria last night following a crash on Nanaimo Lakes Road early Sunday. He suffered head injuries when the old-model car he and two other youths were riding in turned over. Earle Wallace of Wellington is in satisfactory condition in hospital here, while Victor Ward of Jingle Pot Road was released after treatment for minor injuries.

From Ann Hathaway Cottage

Antique Theft Mystery

Mystery last night surrounded the theft of about $1,500 worth of English antiques Sunday night from the Ann Hathaway cottage at the Olde England Inn.

Proprietor Sam Lane said it was the first time in his 16 years of operation that the premises had been burglarized. Officials of the B.C. Maritime Museum and the Greater Victoria Art Gallery should "be on their guard" in case attempts are made to loot rare collections at those places, he said.

INTO BUILDING

Biggest mystery was how the thieves got into the building. All three doors leading into the Ann Hathaway cottage were locked when the theft was discovered yesterday morning, said Mr. Lane.

He offered a reward for information leading to the recovery of the antiques. He also asked for antique dealers, second-hand dealers and collectors to be on the lookout for the items.

GUIDED TOUR

The treasures may have been taken by someone who went on a guided tour of the premises. "Items taken were those most frequently spoken about by the guides."

The antiques were also small enough to have all been carried away inside two suitcases, he said.

COINCIDENCE

Rex McCaul, assistant manager of the Olde England Inn, apparently by coincidence missed being stepped on when the intruder first attempted to get into the cottage.

He normally sleeps in a basement suite but Sunday night had slept in the inn. When he went to his suite yesterday morning, he found a large footprint on his pillow beneath a window which had been wrenched from the building.

NO ACCESS

But there is no access from this apartment into the rest of the building and the thief apparently went back out through the window and somehow managed to get into the building above.

Mr. Lane unlocked a door to the cottage and found the following items were missing:

Two 16th century glass earthenware Bellarmine bottles, two brass candlesticks and one pewter candlestick—all of the 18th century—a flint striker and tinderbox, a rare Bombarde drinking vessel and a leather bottle.

TWO TINTYPES

Also, two early Victorian tintypes of Holy Trinity Church and Shakespeare's birthplace, two 18th century Doulton figurines, six blue Chinese pattern plates, a vegetable tureen drainer, a brass lantern, a Staffordshire lace pillow and lace bobbins and a pewter tankard of the Victorian era.

The antiques were not insured. Their loss will not hamper operation of the Olde England Inn or Ann Hathaway's Cottage but "if we can't replace some of the rarer items we will have to start searching in England for more antiques," said Mr. Lane.

ART ROBBERY

"This can be regarded as a robbery of an art collection and the whole community will suffer to some extent unless it is recovered," he said.

Former Principal Put on Probation

A former high school principal convicted of contributing to juvenile delinquency was given a suspended sentence when he appeared in juvenile court yesterday.

Frank Rendle, 1640 Kisher, who last week resigned his position as principal of Mount View High School, was placed on probation for two years and ordered to post a $1,500 bond in two or more sureties.

Rendle was convicted of contributing by committing an act of gross indecency with a 17-year-old hitchhiker at Beaver Lake on Feb. 17.

Powerless Mines Waiting

TRAIL (CP)—Work will be completed next month on a standby transmission line to replace a Kootenay Lake power line knocked out by a terrorist bombing March 6.

A spokesman for Consolidated

Mining and Smelting Company said Monday three cables will be strung across the lake at a point about three miles wide. Cominco expects the standby line will provide power for normal operation of lead and zinc mining operations at Kimberley and Riondel in the East Kootenay district of southeastern British Columbia. But its capacity will be lower than that of the damaged line.

The company said it will take several months to rebuild the 305-foot transmission tower which was toppled by the dynamite blast.

Damage was estimated at $500,000 and more than 1,000 men lost their jobs because power supplies were cut off for mining and smelting operations.

New Doukhobor Penitentiary Planned in Steel and Concrete

OTTAWA (CP)—Justice Minister Fulton announced yesterday the special maximum-security penitentiary for Sons of Freedom Doukhobors now being sentenced to penitentiary terms will be established near Agassiz.

Accommodation for 40 men and 15 women will be provided in prefabricated, fireproof steel buildings constructed on concrete slabs and expansion will be possible if necessary, he said.

The site, well away from main roads and populated areas, is about five miles upstream and on the opposite side of the Fraser River from a previously-announced site.

John Grant, deputy warden of the British Columbia penitentiary, said last Wednesday that a site at Chilliwack, B.C., was abandoned because of protests from residents of the area.

Mr. Fulton said the institution will have a high wire fence and will be operated on a maximum security basis. Men and women will be segregated.

He said "It would be unwise if not dangerous to place the Sons of Freedom in the various federal institutions across Canada at this time."

"At present the maximum security penitentiaries are still overcrowded and the introduction of these people, who refuse to accept training or treatment facilities and who will not accept institutional routine, would greatly hamper the existing penal reform program."

As overcrowding is alleviated, members of the Sons of Freedom will be assimilated in the various institutions across Canada, he said.

Agassiz Officials Happy

AGASSIZ (CP)—Civic officials and business men are pleased with the federal government's decision to build a prison here for Sons of Freedom Doukhobors convicted of terrorism.

"We told the government we'd be very happy to have the prison in our municipality," Kent Reeve, James Fraser said Monday.

He said businessmen welcome the project because construction will provide employment and the maximum security prison's staff will have a payroll of $300,000.

The prison will be seven miles northwest of here on an 80-acre site in an isolated area about 50 miles east of Vancouver.

The federal justice department scrapped earlier plans to build the penitentiary in another Fraser Valley area after Chilliwack residents protested.

67 'Sons' Charged In Court

Nelson, B.C. (CP)—Sixty-seven leaders of the Sons of Freedom Doukhobors appeared in court yesterday, heard a four-page indictment read against them, then were remanded for eight days.

Most of them were to leave later for Oshawa prison.

Sixty of the leaders charged with offences similar to treason, were arrested in one of the largest RCMP roundups in Canadian peace-time history.

Old Criminal Law Used In Charging 67 'Sons'

OTTAWA (CP)—One of the earliest criminal laws passed by parliament is the basis for the charges under which 67 Sons of Freedom Doukhobors appeared in court at Nelson Monday.

The law now says: "Every one who does an act of violence in order to intimidate the Parliament of Canada or the legislature of a province is guilty of an indictable offence and is liable to imprisonment for 14 years."

Conspiracy to commit the offence carries the same penalty under the 1868 Criminal Code revision.

Parliament first enacted laws to enforce its jurisdiction and protect its authority less than a year after Confederation. It passed the law in 1868, even before the Criminal Code was gathered together in one document embodying criminal law.

In the more ornate language of the old enactment, Parliament provided: "Wherever two or more persons consederate, combine, or conspire to do any act of violence in order to intimidate or to put any force of constraint upon any legislative council, legislative assembly, or house of assembly in any one of the provinces within Canada, each of such persons shall be guilty of a felony."

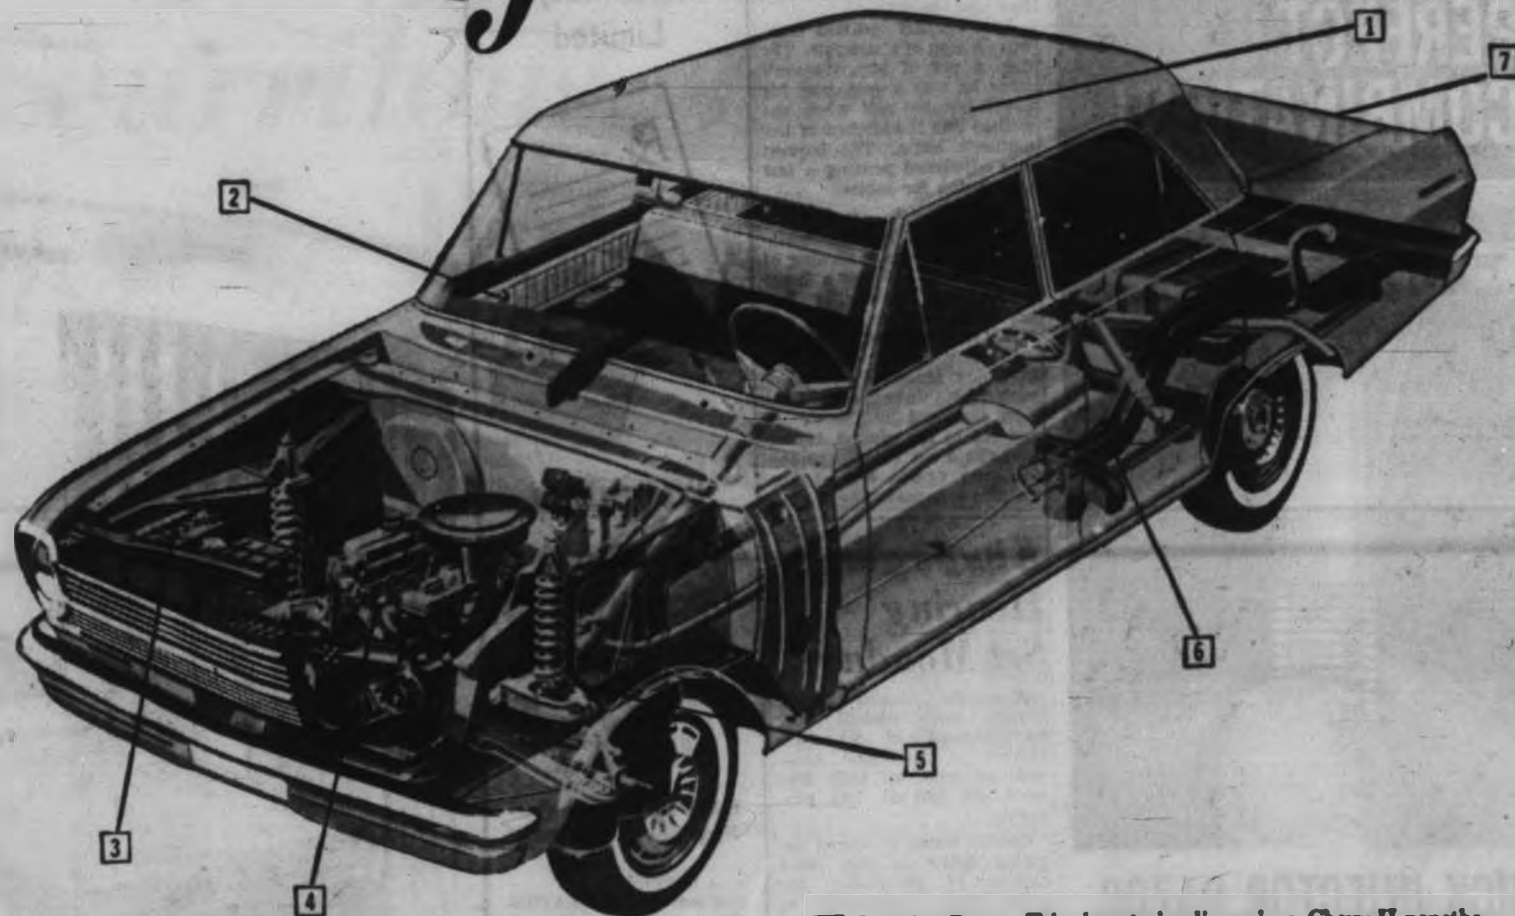

The penalty was two to 14 years in penitentiary, or up to two years in prison with or without hard labor.

Canon Enthroned As Yukon Bishop

In solemn, colorful ceremony traditional to the Church of England, Canon Henry Hooper Marsh of Toronto Sunday was consecrated Bishop of the Yukon at Christ Church Cathedral.

Archbishop Harold Sexton officiated at the service, witnessed by a congregation of 1,400 headed by Lieutenant-Governor Pearkes. Assisting were bishops and clergy from all parts of British Columbia.

Bishop Marsh, a fifth-generation Canadian-born in Lindsay, Ont., 63 years ago, succeeds Rt. Rev. Thomas Greenwood as head of the 200,000-square-mile diocese. Bishop Greenwood retired recently to become Assistant Bishop of Chester, England.

Wearing a plain purple cassock, the bishop-elect was escorted by two priests in the great procession. He did not put on the white and scarlet robes of his new office until he had taken the oath of obedience from Mr. Justice R. A.

Wootton, chancellor of the provincial synod.

Following the traditional questions, laying-on of hands by the bishops, the presentation of the Bible and delivery of the pastoral staff, the new bishop was invested with the pectoral cross and ring.

"If 12,000 people can enjoy life in the Yukon," said Bishop Marsh, "so can I. I shall continue to try to bring people closer to God and closer to one another in faith and fellowship."

Mistress Killed by Pet?

Dog Lovers, 'No'-Dog Expert, 'Possible'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Is Baron guilty of cold-blooded capital murder?

Could the large, six-year-old German shepherd have viciously attacked and killed his beloved mistress March 10? Many dog lovers in the Great Vancouver area are giving an emphatic no to the question.

Among the defenders is Mrs. Grace Sutcliffe who found the lacerated body of her mother, Mrs. Rose Watson, in the middle of the mother's living room in suburban Burnaby.

At an inquest last week, pathologist Dr. Erik Robertson said Mrs. Watson, 72, died because her windpipe was crushed and the main artery in her throat was severed. There were jagged wounds on her face and shoulder.

Mrs. Sutcliffe testified there was no sign of a struggle. The dog, a pet of Mrs. Watson's since he was a pup, was his usual friendly self when she walked into the kitchen of her mother's home. The inquest was adjourned pending a test on the dog for rabies.

Mrs. Sutcliffe said her mother suffered from hardening of the arteries, had had a heart attack and occasionally lost her balance and fell. The dog lovers have jumped on this.

In a weekend demonstration, dog fancier Pedro Rose grabbed his three-year-old German shepherd by the throat and fell to the ground, trying to imitate an elderly person suffering from one of her periodic collapses. The dog attempted to shake off Mr. Rose's hand and when he failed, bared his teeth and lunged for its master's throat.

Mr. Rose said the demonstration proved to him that Baron was innocent. He said it indicated that if Mrs. Watson had collapsed and grabbed Baron's neck, the dog would have attacked.

Kindergarten Hearing Set Monday

A public hearing giving council more control over establishment of kindergartens in residential areas will be held at Oak Bay municipal hall at 7.45 p.m. Monday.

Council wants to amend the zoning bylaw to gain more control in preventing the hodge-podge development of this type of school in private homes, said a municipal official.

The amendment is not aimed at prohibiting construction of new public school buildings, he said.

If the council-initiated amendment is passed, it means the general public will also have a voice in whether kindergartens are permitted in specific areas.

Public hearings would have to be called in future on such applications whereas under the present system residents are not advised a kindergarten is about to open nearby.

Zip, Sparkle, Dedication Bring Schools Symphony to Concert Pitch

Spirit of youth is one name for it: Zip or sparkle. If you like, but Greater Victoria schools symphony orchestra certainly has it. Mrs. Dorothy Evans, music teacher and conductor, is proud of her 60-member orchestra. Many of the string players, now in Grade 12, took their first violin lessons from her while still in elementary schools. Under school board program, music supervisor H. J. Bigsby now has 250 string players in local elementary schools, another 125 in junior high schools, 40 in high schools. Orchestra is pinnacle they all strive to reach. But over years some drop out. Mr. Bigsby explains: "It takes five years even to make a poor fiddle player." String program hasn't dazzle appeal of school bands, with promise of marching in parades, but it has subtler pull that inspires dedication. Orchestra members practise many hours at home and devote two afternoons a week after school to joint practice. With exams uncomfortably close, players are now preparing for guest appearances at Royal Theatre next week.

Occasion is annual guest appearance during Victoria Symphony concerts Sunday and Monday. Orchestra will play at Victoria High School April 18, and win national recognition with appearance at Canadian Music Educators' convention in Vancouver, April 26 to 28. (Colonist photos by Ted Harris.)

Clash Over Park

Baseball Group Wants to See Pageant Chopped

Senior baseball officials would like to see the centennial pageant reduced in size or dropped altogether, city parks committee was told yesterday.

"We'd like to see the pageant dropped," said Garfield Taylor, vice-president of Victoria and District Amateur Baseball Association. "Does it have to be this large? Can it be written so it will fit in the arena?"

SPOKESMEN PRESENT

Plans to hold the pageant in Royal Athletic Park have caused a clash between centennial officials and the baseball association which normally plays in the park.

Also present at the meeting were spokesmen for Victoria Centennial Society and Victoria Sports Council.

THE PROBLEM: "It seems to me the problem is this—whether the centennial program is more important to Victoria or the baseball program we have worked on for 15 years," said Wally Thompson, another spokesman for the baseball association.

ESTIMATE ASKED

Shifting of boxing and square dance events from the park will be considered by the centennial committee, and city parks administrator Herbert Warren has been asked to prepare an estimate of the cost of constructing adequate baseball facilities in Topaz Park for the association's teams to use while the pageant is being staged in Royal Athletic Park.

Another joint meeting will be held when Mr. Warren's report is completed.

'Scurrilous, Rotten Thing' Sparks Wild Name-Calling

By PETER BRUTON

ALAN MACFARLANE ... an insult

A wild, name-calling melee in the legislature yesterday ended in a threat to "name" two members and an opposition demand that Deputy Speaker Alex Matthew (S.C.—Vancouver Centre) be dismissed because he was "incompetent and biased."

The fireworks began when Alan Macfarlane (L—Oak Bay) spoke about legislation which forbids the B.C. Power Corporation to go to court in an attempt to seek better compensation for the takeover of the B.C. Electric Company. Interjected Victoria, Scored M.L.A. Waldo Skillings: "Are you on the payroll of the B.C. Power Corporation?"

'Rotten Thing'

"That's a scurrilous, rotten, low-down thing to say," exploded Mr. Macfarlane. "That's an insult to my reputation and integrity. You ought to be ashamed of yourself."

Mr. Matthew, who was acting as committee chairman, demanded Mr. Macfarlane withdraw his accusations of Mr.

Skillings being "scurrilous and rotten."

"I'm not going to take that sort of treatment from anyone," shouted Mr. Macfarlane. "I ask you to withdraw," said Mr. Matthew. "Shame! Shame! Shame!" yelled opposition members.

"Hold an inquiry. Find out what was said beforehand," they demanded.

'Be Fair'

"Be fair, Mr. Chairman." But Mr. Matthew kept up his demands that Mr. Macfarlane withdraw.

"I'm the member for Oak Bay, nothing else," stormed the M.L.A.

'Name Him?'

"Name him, name him, Mr. Chairman," prompted Premier Bennett. (When a member is named he is forced to leave the legislature until such time as the Speaker allows him to return. The last member of the B.C. legislature to be "named" was Gordon Gibson in 1955.) "I order you to withdraw," the chairman pleaded with Mr. Macfarlane.

'Other Guy'

"How about the other guy?" yelled Tony Gargrave (NDP—C.P.—Mackenzie). "Have an inquiry as to what was said. Be fair, be fair." The uproar brought Mr.

WALDO SKILLINGS ... a disgrace

Speaker Hugh Shantz running back to his seat.

"I am resuming the chair," he told the shouting House.

"Name that member," urged Premier Bennett.

"You're a disgrace," Mr. Macfarlane shouted at Mr. Skillings.

The Hon. member for Oak Bay asked the chairman to repeat what had been said. He expressed the ruling that scurrilous and rotten were words which should not be used in the legislature.

"I say his (Mr. Skillings) remarks were scurrilous and rotten and untrue!" screamed Mr. Macfarlane.

"The member for Oak Bay will withdraw," ordered Mr. Speaker.

Pandemonium broke out again.

Tony Gargrave, levelling a finger at Mr. Skillings, said: "He was the guy who caused all the trouble and he always causes trouble."

"If you don't sit down I'll name you, too," said Mr. Speaker.

"I'd be happy to leave," snapped Mr. Gargrave.

'Half True'

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan, during a temporary lull, said that what Chairman Alex Matthew had told the speaker was true, but only half true.

Once again, said Mr. Strachan, it was the opposition duty to object to Mr. Matthew as a biased, incompetent chairman.

"You can't make an attack on either the chairman or the Speaker without a motion," said Mr. Speaker Shantz.

Out of Order

Mr. Strachan promptly moved that Mr. Matthew be removed from his position. But the motion was ruled out of order because no notice had been given.

Mr. Matthew was called before Mr. Speaker and asked whether Mr. Skillings had uttered the words he was accused of.

"I didn't hear the remarks," he replied.

'It's an Order'

Mr. Macfarlane finally withdrew his statements against Mr. Skillings because it "is an order and I have to do so."

Opposition members charged they were sick and tired of the abuse being hurled at them by Mr. Skillings.

"Withdraw, Waldo," called the premier along to his friend.

ALEX MATTHEW ... attacked

"I may say no member takes more abuse in this House than myself," began Mr. Skillings. "But if the honorable member took offense ..."

'Those Words'

"Did you use those words attributed to you," asked Mr. Speaker.

"Yes, I did," replied Mr. Skillings.

He was told to withdraw his original statements which had sparked the furore.

"If the member took offense I will withdraw," sighed Mr. Skillings. Then, in an aside, he mumbled: "It was only a simple question."

Saanich Group Turns Down Bid for Bus Sinking Fund

Coun. Robert Chard last night suffered defeat in his bid to get an intermunicipal sinking fund established toward the day when municipalities will be faced with responsibility of a Greater Victoria public bus service.

He was supported only by Coun. Hugh Currie when Saanich finance committee voted to take no action on his suggestion.

"I can't see how council could object to this program being put to the intermunicipal committee's transit study group," argued Coun. Chard.

"Even under ideal circumstances, when the bus hand-over takes place some funds are going to be required to finance equipment or deficits of operation or both.

"I can't see the provincial authorities now doing very much about maintenance in the five-odd-year period we are going through" until the B.C. Electric bus franchise expires, said Coun. Chard.

Tourist Housing Plan Needs Another $26,000

Retail businessmen must contribute up to $26,000 if the Expo-Lodging housing scheme is to be successful in B.C., an Expo-Lodging official said last night.

J. R. Corbett, of Vancouver, chairman of the B.C. Expo-Lodging steering committee, said the B.C. hotel and auto court industry has already contributed $26,000 towards the giant tourist housing scheme.

"It is estimated it will take twice this sum to finance the scheme," he said in a press release.

"It is imperative that the retailer come forward with his contribution if this giant-size housing operation is to be a success."

Municipal engineer Geoffrey White told a meeting of the works and parks committee last night that the 20-year-old tree on Hampshire Road between Dalhousie and Bowker would have to go because it was too big to move.

"It's a shame," said Coun. Fred Robinson. "It certainly is a fine tree." The tree will be replaced by two five- or six-year-old flowering trees after the project is finished, Mr. White said.

Save It With Flowers

A flowering plum tree that stands in the way of an Oak Bay road-widening project will be spared—at least until it has finished blooming.

Municipal engineer Geoffrey White told a meeting of the works and parks committee last night that the 20-year-old tree on Hampshire Road between Dalhousie and Bowker would have to go because it was too big to move.

"It's a shame," said Coun. Fred Robinson. "It certainly is a fine tree." The tree will be replaced by two five- or six-year-old flowering trees after the project is finished, Mr. White said.

Grant Bid Rejected

A request for a $155 grant for the Centennial Century 21 Accommodation Centre was turned down last night by Saanich finance committee.

Televised James Douglas Doesn't Know Birthplace

Peter Bruton's NOTEBOOK

DRAMA IN REAL LIFE: If you watched "Live a Borrowed Life" on television last night you'll recall there was somewhat of an uproar over the birthplace of Sir James Douglas.

City reporter-historian James E. Nesbitt, who for the purposes of the program was Sir James, reports the hubbub came about because of confusion in research.

The CBC told Jim the research books on Douglas' life would be those written by Dr. Walter Sage and Dr. Margaret Ormsby. But it turned out that CBC in Toronto changed the rules, as it were, and used Coats and Gemmell's life of Douglas, published in 1908 and long out of date—a work librarians and archivists do not recommend.

Moderator Charles Tompkins insisted that Douglas was born in British Guiana while Jim argued there was no proof of exactly where Douglas had been born.

Commented moderator Tompkins: "I haven't got his birth certificate, if that's what you want."

POINT OF FACT: When the controversial power legislation came up last Thursday for second reading—the time for discussion on the principles of the bill—Fannie Liberal fiery McKay wasn't present.

So he tried to get his kicks in yesterday.

But committee chairman Alex Matthew ruled he couldn't discuss the bill's principles in third reading but could merely confine himself to remarks section by section.

Mr. McKay pressed on regardless and quoted a section which forbade court action against the B.C.E.

"Where's that in Section Three?" someone asked.

Mr. McKay read a quote.

"Section Three doesn't say anything like that," said Mr. Matthew.

"Ho, ho, ho!" roared Premier Bennett, suddenly catching on. "He's got the wrong bill."

Mr. McKay had, too. He was talking about the B.C.E. takeover bill while the legislature was discussing the bill merging the B.C.E. and B.C. Power Commission!

INCIDENTAL INTELLIGENCE: North Vancouver Liberal M.L.A. Gordon Gibson put a question on the order paper asking:

"What was the amount spent on research, medical or otherwise, during 1961, as to why the inmates of Oakalla find themselves there?"

Attorney-General Robert Bennett replied: "Why inmates find themselves in Oakalla has not been the subject of research."

THE THINGS THEY SAY: Our very own Premier Bennett, in welcoming Liberal defence critic Paul Hellyer in a visit to the legislature: "Our House might not be as large as the one in Ottawa, but at times it is just as exciting."

Leo Munnick (NDP—C.P.—Cranbrook), in an uncutting all: "A single person can't obtain board and room for $60 a day." ... Opposition leader Robert Strachan, during debate on the bill merging the B.C. Electric and the B.C. Power Commission: "The B.C. should be The B.C. Hydro Commission Bill—I think that would be more fitting."

INSTANT ITEM: Your credit is always good when you start to borrow trouble.

Swartz Bay-Tsawwassen

Hourly Ferry Trips Will Start on May 1

Hourly B.C. Toll Authority ferry service between Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen will start as scheduled May 1, authority officials said yesterday.

The 120-car capacity City of Victoria and City of Vancouver will be joined by the 80-car Kwikwaka and Chinook. Starting April 19 the ferries Sidney and Tsawwassen will make two additional trips between Nanaimo and Horseshoe Bay.

They will leave at 6 a.m. instead of 8 a.m. and midnight instead of 10 p.m.

This will be a two-hour service from both terminals.

Officials said the shifting of Sidney and Tsawwassen to the Nanaimo route was planned to give extra car and passenger space for the tourist season.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I'm very much in love with a fellow who will soon be a full-fledged co-pilot for a major airline.

We've gone together since high school and I always knew we'd be married one day. But now that he is promising me for a date I'm having some second thoughts.

He would have to be away from home several days at a time. The temptations for a man in his job are enormous. Some women just go for guys in uniform, not to mention the added problem of those good-looking stewards. I've heard that the crews become very friendly and generally they all stay at the same hotel. It's bad enough, being exposed to temptation during the day, but this night stuff has me concerned.

Perhaps I could get some information from your readers who are married to pilots. What are the chances for a solid marriage when a husband flies?—FEET ON THE GROUND.

Dear Feet: Some occupations offer more opportunities for philandering. But in the final analysis, the Big Question—To Cheat or Not To Cheat—rests with the individual.

In my opinion, marriage to a pilot would not be more nor less hazardous than marriage to a shoe salesman, a doctor or a plumber.

Dear Ann: My husband and his brother are in business together. They draw the same amount weekly and divide the profits annually. My husband works like a horse and is the brains of the business. His brother takes his easy and everyone knows it.

The brother's wife is a social climber and a big spender. For years they have lived up every dollar with their trips, big cars and fancy parties.

We have always lived conservatively and have managed to save a nice little nest-egg. Now we want to buy a beautiful new duplex. We could live on one side and rent the other side out as income property.

My husband told me yesterday that his brother would like to buy the duplex with us—only he has no money. He wants us to put up all the cash. He will pay us monthly for his share—like rent.

What do you think of this idea? Frankly, I am against it. Is it worth a family fight?—Greta.

Dear Greta: The idea is a poor one and I hope you'll stick it.

It's apparent that you don't care for these relatives. Having them next door would be murder. And what would you do, pray tell, if they couldn't pay the rent? Kick 'em out? Buy a one-family home.

Witness Afraid

Mafia Fear Grows at Monks' Trial

MESINA, Sicily (AP)—The invisible hand of the dreaded Mafia has dropped a net of fear over the assize court here, where four Capuchin monks are on trial for murder and extortion.

Terror stalked the countryside around their Magarine monastery deep in the mountains of central Sicily four years ago. Sums of money were extorted from wealthy farmers and shopkeepers. Refusal to pay meant a smashed shop, a home consumed by fire, a sudden beating or death, like the shotgun slaying of farmer Angelo Cannata, 74.

The four bearded friars were arrested with three peasants, two years ago. Police said they were the authors of the terror, along with monastery gardener Carmelo Bartolo. His death in a prison cell after his arrest was listed as suicide.

The crimes ascribed to the defendants—Brother Venanzio, 35, Brother Carmelo, 53, Brother Vittorio, 42, and Brother Agrippino, 38—wear the look of the Mafia.

In Sicily the Mafia says whether a new shop may open or an old shop close, how much "tax" must be paid into its illegal coffers, prescribes the punishment for failing to pay, and protects interests and clients alike. With the trial going into the third week, the friars have testified that it was fear that got them involved in the evil doings around Mazzarino.

One of the peasants on trial, Filippo Nicoletti, 23, asked on the third day of trial that the courtroom be emptied of spectators and the doors closed.

"I am afraid," he told the judge. "I don't wish to say anything," Nicoletti said. "I don't know anything. I'm just afraid for me and my family."

The monks finally took the stand. They told how "gangsters" forced them to co-operate in the extortion racket or be killed.

The elderly white-haired brother Carmelo explained why he didn't go to the police.

"I was afraid. I was not afraid for myself, but I was afraid for the monastery, for the seminarians."

On the second day he testified:

"Yes I was afraid for myself as well. Because the mafiosi had the power to beat me and kill me. At Mazzarino, who doesn't talk lives, who talks dies."

Brother Carmelo never identified the mafiosi. He did not use the word Mafia. But his meaning was clear to all Sicilians.

TV Hits Young Ideals

WASHINGTON—Hugh Carlisle Greene, director general of the British Broadcasting Corporation, said U.S. western and adventure television programs shown abroad might cause young people of developing countries to "turn for their ideals elsewhere."

"One cannot help wondering whether the good that has been done by program after program of foreign aid is in danger of being undone by the image of America as it appears on program after program on the television screens of the world," he said.

Names in News

Greene said "a great opportunity is being lost" through the type of U.S. television shows sold abroad.

"Night after night around the world people are huddled around television sets to watch westerns and crime and adventure serials, and not always the best of their kind," he said.

"In the countries of Asia, Africa and Latin America there are thousands of young idealistic people who want more from television than the ideals of Tomestone and Dead Man's Gulch," Greene added. "If we in the West fail to help these people to make better use of television they can turn for their ideals elsewhere."

New Guinea Talks Break Down

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S.-sponsored secret talks between The Netherlands and Indonesia over disputed New Guinea have broken down, informed diplomatic sources said Monday.

The stumbling block is the key issue of administering the Dutch-held territory.

While the United States remained hopeful that the informal talks that resumed last Thursday would be resumed, diplomatic informants did not share this optimism.

Sources reported the Indonesians feel the Dutch are following a "divide and rule" policy which represents no real change in position.

Algeria Move

By DAVE GANCIA Canadian Press Staff Writer

The diplomatic strains which have developed between Paris and Moscow are another indication that President de Gaulle will brook no nonsense—not even from the Russians—as he strives to achieve peace in Algeria.

The aloof, iron-willed French leader was reported to be furious over the Soviet Union's recognition of the Algerian provisional government based in Tunis.

TERRE ANNOUNCEMENTS France curtly announced that Ambassador Maurice Dejean had been recalled to Paris for "consultations." Almost at the same time the French foreign office said Russian Ambassador Sergei Vinogradov was "invited to resume direct contact with his government in Moscow."

BEAUMONT IMPORTANT This act could have thrown a monkey wrench into the summit machinery, as some British observers have suggested.

But, say the press—Gaulle!

Russia Smothers Geneva Buffer Bid

By ALAN HARVEY

GENEVA (CP)—A four-hour meeting between Russia and the United States or, Berlin and the failure of a Canadian bid to interpose a buffer between the nuclear giants dominated proceedings Monday on the 13th day of the 17-power disarmament conference.

In their longest meeting to date, Russian Deputy Foreign Minister Gromyko and U.S. State Secretary Rusk argued cordially but apparently without conclusive result on methods of supervising access routes to West Berlin. The meeting was at Russia's delegation headquarters.

As they talked, External Affairs Minister Green of Canada disclosed to reporters the stalling of his attempt to enlarge the nuclear big three subcommittee by inclusion of several neutral nations.

Session Postponed

The idea was to bring gentle pressure on the big three to conclude an accord on nuclear tests before the late-April deadline for resumption of tests by the U.S. on Christmas Island in the Pacific.

Green put the blame on Russia for smothering the proposal to link the non-aligned countries with the Big Three talks, expected to resume today though apparently hopelessly deadlocked.

Monday's full session was postponed following the death of T. G. Narayanan of India Sunday night. Narayanan was personal assistant on disarmament to United Nations Secretary-General U Thant. He suffered a heart attack.

Green and his staff members also prepared a proposal on peaceful uses of outer space which the Canadian hoped to present to the conference during today's session. It would call for a ban on use of weapons launched from space.

Rusk Off Home

In a chat with reporters, the Canadian minister also said the idea of a summit conference following this disarmament meeting also is being talked about again.

After Rusk and Gromyko ended their talk they agreed to continue discussing the problem by other means.

Rusk is to fly to Washington late today to report to President Kennedy. American sources said the fact that the Russians are interested in continuing to talk about Berlin indicated that the Kremlin is not anxious to force an early showdown.

British Foreign Secretary

Envoy Recalled

De Gaulle's move came only after he had seen the Soviet ambassador twice to try to get an explanation of the Russian step.

Since no explanation came from either the ambassador or his masters in Moscow the French government said it was forced to conclude that "maintenance of Franco-Soviet relations at the ambassadorial level had become impossible."

Teachers on Strike

Religious Pictures Spark School Revolt

MONTREAL (CP) — Four teachers remained on strike yesterday at St. Nom de Jesus Boys' School, where an incident involving religious pictures has provoked an investigation by the Montreal Catholic school commission.

The teachers stayed home Thursday and Friday, after a Grade 6 pupil was punished by principal Roland Desrosiers for saying he did not like the type of religious pictures in the classroom.

Half the boys in the Grade 6 class of 30 also stayed home Thursday and Friday but attendance was reported to be normal yesterday.

The incident occurred Wednesday in the classroom and the pupil was supported by his teacher, Jules Chatelein, 22.

Since then there have been meetings of the school commission and L'Alliance des Professeurs Catholiques, which bargains for most of Montreal's French-speaking teachers.

Mr. Chatelein and the three teachers said: "Our schools are not realistic. Our schools are not Christian, our schools are not providing an education. They are only factories of indoctrination and attachment to an outdated tradition."

Drama's First Night Marked 'Good Start'

By BERT BINNY

The regional finals of the Dominion Drama Festival which opened before a sparse audience at Oak Bay Junior High School last night enjoyed "an above-average start," said adjudicator David Gardner.

Opening play was the Victoria Theatre Guild's The Chalk Garden, which the adjudicator found to be "a fascinating, intricate, unique and individual play."

MISSED MOOD

Phyllis Duple's production, he noted, was "alike, well observed and well understood but missed the mood that grips and lacked spontaneity and depth between players."

"Costuming," added Mr. Gardner, "was beautifully done, there was good set design and the lighting was good with the limited facilities."

Nesta Morris was singled out as an "experienced performer with commanding presence" and Allan Purdy for being "completely believable."

"Shelia Litt as Miss Madrigal had a great quality of stillness," said the adjudicator, "while Corinna Bruce as Laurel was vital and alive and possessed of the secret of spontaneity."

Tonight at 8:15 the Vagabond Players of New Westminster present Joseph Kramm's Pulitzer Prize play, The Shrike, also at Oak Bay Junior High.

Naden Band Program Entertaining

No matter what the type of music, it always sounds extra good when played by HMCS Naden band.

With a fine selection of marches, musical comedy items, a Latin American number, Brahms' Academic Festival Overture, and a Nautical Rhapsody, the band kept a full house at the Royal Theatre thoroughly entertained last night.

The occasion was another concert in aid of the Armed Services Centre and the band was assisted by the RCN School of Music choir.

In addition, soprano Anne Harris and baritone John Dunbar were heard to advantage in both solo and duet groups.

The concert was opened by Rear Admiral J. C. Hibbard, Lieutenant-Governor G. R. Pearkes and Mrs. Pearkes, and Mayor and Mrs. R. B. Wilson were present for the concert.

Bandmaster was Commissioned Officer T. W. Milner and Capt. J. Gayler directed the choir.—B.B.

Red China Pays Up

OTTAWA (CP) — Veterans Affairs Minister Churchill said Monday night that Red China has paid $108,000,000 in cash so far on its purchases of Canadian wheat and barley.

Exports to date have amounted to $150,000,000, he said.

"These exports, together with exports to our traditional markets, have provided a welcome increase in western farm incomes, which in turn have released new purchasing power for the goods and services required by farmers from the business community at large."

March Ends In Algeria Bloodbath

ALGERIA (AP)—European settlers rallied to the call of the Secret Army Organization Monday with a defiant march that ended in a bloodbath in the centre of Algiers. Fifty persons were killed and 186 wounded.

The violence broke out as President de Gaulle made a national television and radio broadcast in Paris, calling for approval of the Algerian peace agreement and warning the Secret Army that it would be punished. Frenchmen will vote approval — expected — or disapproval of the agreement ending the 7½-year Algerian War in a referendum April 8.

'Punishment Sure' Rampaging Europeans Warned by de Gaulle

PARIS — President de Gaulle put his prestige on the line Monday as he called on the French people to approve the Algerian peace settlement.

And he warned members of the right-wing Secret Army Organization, in the rampage in Algeria against the settlement, that they will be punished.

City Taxes May Soar

Plummeting income and rocketing budget estimates indicate the end of the city's pay-as-you-go policy, resumption of borrowing and a solid increase in taxes.

Facing aldermen at city hall yesterday when the annual budget discussions began were an assessment $2,000,000 less than last year, a mill which is worth $2,000 less than in 1961, and a preliminary budget more than $850,000 higher than last year's final total.

Ending the city's 10-year-old pay-as-you-go policy and borrowing the money necessary to finance capital projects seems the only way city council can keep the tax increase to a "reasonable" level, Mayor R. R. Wilson commented.

Poet Frost Hails Kennedy, Nikita

WASHINGTON (AP)—Poet Robert Frost got a medal on his 85th birthday Monday and tossed complimentary sonnets to President Kennedy.

The rebellion call came from Gen. Franklin Rawson, commander of the third cavalry division in southern Buenos Aires province.

He issued his communique only moments after Frondizi defied renewed military pressure to quit and rejected a plea from ex-president Pedro Aramburu that Frondizi abandon his office to end the nation's biggest crisis in seven years.

Gen. Rawson declared the use of force was the only means left for those demanding the end of Frondizi's four-year regime.

Rawson's announcement came as other army generals were meeting at war ministry headquarters to plan strategy in the face of Frondizi's persistent refusals to step down.

After talking with the president, Aramburu told reporters Frondizi had declared "he is resigning and will not resign."

The decision appeared to mark the end and complete failure of Aramburu's 19-day mediation mission that started last Friday. The collapse came after Frondizi had sworn in a new cabinet, ready to press on with the austerity program that brought the Peronist upheaval of the polls.

No Immunity For BCE Court Rules

CHIEF JUSTICE

Power Rate Cuts Due in 15 Days House Promised

Power rate reductions for every householder in British Columbia are planned to come into effect within 15 days, Premier Bennett told the legislature yesterday.

That, he said, was the reason he wanted to push ahead Bill 84, which when proclaimed will merge the B.C. Power Commission and the B.C. Electric into one B.C. Power and Hydro Authority.

But, Alan Macfarlane (L-Oak Bay) and Leo Nimick (NDP-CBC-Cranbrook) were both quick to point out to the premier that there is no reason the reduction in power rates can't be granted with the two authorities as they are now.

Premier Bennett will meet federal Finance Minister Fleming later this week in Vancouver in an attempt to settle the Victoria-Ortava impasse over the Columbia River power project.

Not Crown Agency Despite Takeover

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Columbia Court of Appeal ruled Monday the B.C. Electric Company, expropriated by the provincial government last August, is not an agent of the Crown.

The court ruled in a majority decision the company is not a government department and therefore does not enjoy Crown immunity from legal action although the provincial government is its sole shareholder.

The Appeal Court made this ruling in dismissing three appeals by the BCE against three pre-trial orders made by the Supreme Court of B.C. in an action by the B.C. Power Corporation, former parent company of the huge power utility.

B.C. Power seeks a Supreme Court declaration that the Power Development Act, under which BCE was expropriated, is invalid. Alternatively, it asks the court to set a fair compensation figure for the take-over.

The provincial government paid B.C. Power $111,000,000 for the 3,000,000 common shares of BCE and offered to take over B.C. Power—a federally-incorporated company which it could not expropriate—for an additional $88,000,000.

When committee chairman Alex Matthew (BC-Vancouver-Centre) kept telling him to stick to the section under discussion.

"This is an attempt to muzzle the opposition from expressing wishes," charged Mr. Macfarlane.

He referred to the action of the premier in "trying to find a reason for his astounding conduct in trying to shackle the courts."

"It is pretty hard to find a reason," he remarked.

Mr. Macfarlane warned that the new power authority will have its powers created by the cabinet and by the premier. "We will be told it has nothing to do with the legislature," he complained.

Mr. Macfarlane supported Mr. Perrault. "We favor an overall authority, but certainly not at this time," Mr. Perrault said.

Mr. Macfarlane had difficulty expressing his views.

The government has taken no action on the petition and therefore the company is now trying to launch a lawsuit, he said.

The government has given no indication of whether or not a suit will be granted since the company's solicitors filed the petition of right, Mr. Macfarlane said.

Boys Face 15 Counts; Liquor Thieves Flee

Theft Details A Mystery

LAKE COWICHAN — Ball was set in police court yesterday at $5,000 for each of four Vancouver residents charged with theft from a local home March 19.

Police said only the charge involved property worth more than $500. Eric Gray, Donald Manard, Molly Parsons and Helen Clarke, arrested in Nanaimo, were remanded in custody to Wednesday with out plea.

DUNCAN — Five local juveniles facing 15 charges were remanded in police court Monday until Thursday for trial on charges of entering Chow's grocery store on the Trans-Canada Highway and of stealing $15 worth of merchandise early Sunday.

They are also charged with theft of hubcaps, breaking and entering, theft under $50 and theft over $50. A display window was broken at the store and cigarettes and pop stolen.

As someone left through the door the bell above the entrance awakened the owners sleeping in the back.

DUNCAN — Thieves who forced their way into the local liquor store early Sunday fled through the back door, apparently without taking anything.

Spotted by an elderly man at 5 a.m., two men ran away and police a short time later found a hole cut in the roof of the building. It is believed the same men were responsible for theft of a safe from Bruce's Grocery Store in January.

RCMP have called in a special investigator from Victoria and a complete inventory is being taken.

Crash Kills Wife Millionaire Hurt

NANAIMO — Mrs. Ruth West, wife of a millionaire resident of Qualicum Beach, died instantly about 8:30 a.m. Monday in a car-truck collision near the Pleasant Valley service station outside Wellington.

Her husband, Oliver West, former president of Canadair Ltd., suffered head, chest and leg injuries and is in Nanaimo General Hospital.

Their car apparently crashed into a rear corner of a semi-trailer truck loaded with concrete blocks.

The truck had stopped at the side of the road for repairs after losing a wheel.

Driver of the Evans, Coleman truck was identified by police as James Waugh of Nanaimo.

An army truck which came suddenly on the scene shortly after the collision swerved to the side and went over a 40-foot bank. Driver Pte. G. D. Gould, PFCLJ, was not hurt.

Communist China, he said, "has too many enemies to get in but too many friends to be long kept out."

Vancouver barrister Victor Petricola said solution to most Afro-Asian problems is education. John Grant of the extension department said UN political aspects receive the fanfare but the other 85 per cent of the agencies do the good work.

Zip, Sparkle, Dedication Bring Schools Symphony to Concert Pitch

Spirit of youth is one name for it. Zip or sparkle. If you like, but Greater Victoria schools symphony orchestra certainly has it. Mrs. Dorothy Evans, music teacher and conductor, is proud of her 60-member orchestra. Many of the string players, now in Grade 12, took their first violin lessons from her while still in elementary schools. Under school board program, music supervisor H. J. Bigsby now has 250 string players in local elementary schools, another 125 in junior high schools, 40 in high schools. Orchestra is plan to play all 40 in high schools. Orchestra is plan to play all 40 in high schools. Orchestra is plan to play all 40 in high schools.

dazzle appeal of school bands, with promise of marching in parades, but it has subtler pull that inspires dedication. Orchestra members practise many hours at home and devote two afternoons a week after school to joint practice. With exams uncomfortably close, players are now preparing for guest appearances at Royal Theatre next week.

Occasion is annual guest appearance during Victoria Symphony concerts Sunday and Monday. Orchestra will play at Victoria High School April 18, and wins national recognition with appearance at Canadian Music Educators' convention in Vancouver, April 26 to 28. (Colonist photos by Ted Harris.)

Clash Over Park

Baseball Group Wants to See Pageant Chopped

Senior baseball officials would like to see the centennial pageant reduced in size or dropped altogether, city parks committee was told yesterday.

"We'd like to see the pageant dropped," said Garfield Taylor, vice-president of Victoria and District Amateur Baseball Association. "Does it have to be this large? Can it be written so it will fit in the arena?"

SPOKESMEN PRESENT

Plans to hold the pageant in Royal Athletic Park have caused a clash between centennial officials and the baseball association which normally plays in the park.

Also present at the meeting were spokesmen for Victoria Centennial Society and Victoria Sports Council.

THE PROBLEM

"It seems to me the problem is this—whether the centennial program is more important to Victoria or the baseball program we have worked on for 15 years," said Wally Thompson, another spokesman for the baseball association.

ESTIMATE ASKED

Shifting of boxing and square dance events from the park will be considered by the centennial committee, and city parks administrator Herbert Warren has been asked to prepare an estimate of the cost of constructing adequate baseball facilities in Topaz Park for the association's teams to use while the pageant is being staged in Royal Athletic Park.

Another joint meeting will be held when Mr. Warren's report is completed.

'Scurrilous, Rotten Thing' Sparks Wild Name-Calling

By PETER BRUTON

ALAN MACFARLANE ... an insult

A wild, name-calling melee in the legislature yesterday ended in a threat to "name" two members and an opposition demand that Deputy Speaker Alex Matthew (SC—Vancouver Centre) be dismissed because he was "incompetent and biased."

The fireworks began when Alan Macfarlane (L—Oak Bay) spoke about legislation which forbids the B.C. Power Corporation to go to court in an attempt to seek better compensation for the takeover of the B.C. Electric Company. Interjected Victoria Social Credit MLA Waldo Skillings: "Are you on the payroll of the B.C. Power Corporation?"

'Rotten Thing'

"That's a scurrilous, rotten, low-down thing to say," exploded Mr. Macfarlane. "That's an insult to my reputation and integrity. You ought to be ashamed of yourself."

Mr. Matthew, who was acting as committee chairman, demanded Mr. Macfarlane withdraw his accusations of Mr.

Skillings being "scurrilous and rotten."

"I'm not going to take that sort of treatment from anyone," shouted Mr. Macfarlane. "I ask you to withdraw," said Mr. Matthew.

"Shame! Shame! Shame!" yelled opposition members. "Hold an inquiry. Find out what was said beforehand," they demanded.

'Be Fair'

"Be fair, Mr. Chairman." But Mr. Matthew kept up his demands that Mr. Macfarlane withdraw.

"I'm the member for Oak Bay, nothing else," stormed the MLA.

'Name Him!'

"Name him, name him. Mr. Chairman," prompted Premier Bennett. (When a member is named he is forced to leave the legislature until such time as the speaker allows him to return. The last member of the B.C. legislature to be "named" was Gordon Gibson in 1955.) "I order you to withdraw," the chairman pleaded with Mr. Macfarlane.

'Other Guy'

"How about the other guy?" yelled Tony Gargrave (NDP—CCF—Mackenzie). "Have an inquiry as to what was said. Be fair, be fair."

The uproar brought Mr.

WALDO SKILLINGS ... a disgrace

Speaker Hugh Shantz running back to his seat.

"I am resuming the chair," he told the shouting House.

"Name that member," urged Premier Bennett.

"You're a disgrace," Mr. Macfarlane shouted at Mr. Skillings.

"The Hon. member for Oak Bay asked the chairman to repeat what had been said."

He expressed the ruling that scurrilous and rotten words which should not be used in the legislature.

"I say his (Mr. Skillings') remarks were scurrilous and rotten and untrue," screamed Mr. Macfarlane.

"The member for Oak Bay will withdraw," ordered Mr. Speaker.

Pandemonium broke out again. Tony Gargrave, leveling a finger at Mr. Skillings, said: "He was the guy who caused all the trouble and he always causes trouble."

"If you don't sit down I'll name you, too," said Mr. Speaker.

"I'd be happy to leave," snapped Mr. Gargrave.

'Half True'

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan, during a temporary lull, said that what chairman Alex Matthew had told the speaker was true, but only half true.

Once again, said Mr. Strachan, it was the opposition duty to object to Mr. Matthew as a biased, incompetent chairman.

"You can't make an attack on either the chairman or the Speaker without a motion," said Mr. Speaker Shantz.

Out of Order

Mr. Strachan promptly moved that Mr. Matthew be removed from his position. But the motion was ruled out of order because no notice had been given.

Mr. Matthew was called before Mr. Speaker and asked whether Mr. Skillings had uttered the words he was accused of.

"I didn't hear the remarks," he replied.

'It's an Order'

Mr. Macfarlane finally drew his statements against Mr. Skillings because it "is an order and I have to do so."

Opposition members charged they were sick and tired of the abuse being hurled at them by Mr. Skillings.

"Withdraw, Waldo," called the premier along to his friend.

ALEX MATTHEW ... half true

"I may say no member takes more abuse in this House than myself," began Mr. Skillings. "But if the honorable member took offence..."

'Those Words'

"Did you use those words attributed to you," asked Mr. Speaker.

"Yes, I did," replied Mr. Skillings.

He was told to withdraw his original statements which had sparked the furor.

"If the member took offence I will withdraw," sighed Mr. Skillings. Then, in an aside, he mumbled: "It was only a simple question."

Televised James Douglas Doesn't Know Birthplace

Peter Bruton's NOTEBOOK

DRAMA IN REAL LIFE

If you watched "Live a Borrowed Life" on television last night you'll recall there was somewhat of an uproar over the birthplace of Mr. James Douglas.

City reporter-historian James E. Nesbitt, who for the purposes of the program was Mr. James, reports the hubbub came about because of confusion in research.

The CBC told Jim the research books on Douglas' life would be those written by Dr. Walter Sage and Dr. Margaret Gurney. But it turned out that CBC in Toronto changed the rules, as it were, and used Costa and Gamble's life of Douglas, published in 1958 and long out of date—a work librarians and archivists do not recommend.

Moderator Charles Templeton insisted that Douglas was born in British Guiana while Jim argued there was no proof of exactly where Douglas had been born.

Commented mediator Templeton: "I haven't got his birth certificate, if that's what you want."

POINT OF FACT

When the controversial power legislation came up last Thursday for second reading—the third discussion on the principles of the bill—Vernie Liberal Harry McKay wasn't present. So he tried to get his facts in yesterday.

But committee chairman Alex Matthew ruled he couldn't discuss the bill's principles in third reading but could merely confine himself to remarks section by section.

Mr. McKay pressed on regardless and quoted a section which forbade court action against the B.C. "owner's" that in Section Three's substance asked,

Mr. McKay read a quote.

"Section Three doesn't say anything like that," said Mr. Matthew.

"Ho, ho, ho!" roared Premier Bennett, suddenly snatching on. "He's got the wrong bill."

Mr. McKay had, too.

He was talking about the B.C. takeover bill while the legislature was discussing the bill merging the B.C. and B.C. Power Commission.

INCIDENTAL INTELLIGENCE

North Vancouver Liberal MLA J. Gordon Gibson put a question on the order paper asking:

"What was the amount spent on research, medical or other the inmates of Oakalla find themselves there?"

Attorney-General Robert Bennett replied: "Why inmates find themselves in Oakalla has not been the subject of research."

THE THINGS THEY SAY

Our very own Premier Bennett, in welcoming Liberal defence critic Paul Bellamy in a visit to the legislature: "Our House might not be as large as the one in Ottawa, but at times it is just as exciting."

... Leo Nimick (NDP—CCF—Cranbrook), in an unscripted slip: "A single person can't obtain board and room for $80 a day." ... Opposition leader Robert Strachan, during debate on the bill merging the B.C. Electric and the B.C. Power Commission: "The bill should be 'The B.C. Hydro Commission Bill'—I think that would be more fitting."

March Ends In Algiers Bloodbath

ALGIER (AP)—European settlers rallied to the call of the Secret Army Organization Monday with a defiant march that ended in a bloodbath in the centre of Algiers. Fifty persons were killed and 186 wounded.

The violence broke out as President de Gaulle made a national television and radio broadcast in Paris, calling for approval of the Algerian peace agreement and warning the Secret Army that it would be punished. Frenchmen will vote approval — expected — or disapproval of the agreement ending the 7½-year Algerian War in a referendum April 8.

The Secret Army had just learned it had been dealt a severe blow in its underground war to keep Algeria French. Ex-Gen. Edmond Jouhaud, once high in French military circles and the Secret Army's chief in western Algeria, had been seized in Oran. He was hustled off to a prison in Paris, where he is under death sentence.

As night fell over the sunken city of Algiers, French officials described the situation as "tragically alarming." They expressed fears that general rioting and fratricidal war may be averted.

City Taxes May Soar

Plummeting income and rocketing budget estimates indicate the end of the city's pay-as-you-go policy, resumption of borrowing and a solid increase in taxes.

Facing aldermen at city hall yesterday when the annual budget discussions began were an assessment $2,000,000 less than last year, a mill which is worth $2,000 less than in 1961, and a preliminary budget more than $850,000 higher than last year's final total.

ALDERMEN WARNED

At Mayor R. B. Wilson's suggestion, aldermen began earmarking projects which could best be financed by borrowed money.

And comptroller-treasurer James Bramley warned aldermen "I can see an increase of three or four mills without even trying" even if the budget was pared to the bone.

ONE BRIGHT SPOT

Ending the city's 10-year-old pay-as-you-go policy and borrowing the money necessary to finance capital projects seems the only way city council can keep the tax increase to a "reasonable" level, Mayor R. B. Wilson commented.

Army Revolt Now Faces Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—An Argentine army general proclaimed open rebellion early today against President Arturo Frondizi for "committing treason" in refusing to resign from office.

The rebellion call came from Gen. Franklin Rawson, commander of the third cavalry division in southern Buenos Aires province.

He issued his communique only moments after Frondizi declared renewed military pressure to quit and rejected a plea from ex-president Pedro Aramburu that Frondizi abandon his office to end the nation's biggest crisis in seven years.

Gen. Rawson declared the use of force was the only means left for these demanding the end of Frondizi's four-year regime.

GENERALS MEET

Rawson's announcement came as other army generals were meeting at war ministry headquarters to plan strategy in the face of Frondizi's persistent refusal to step down.

Aramburu, the crisis mediator who Sunday night warned the country faced civil war if the crisis was not resolved quickly, declared that all armed forces were agreed that Frondizi must go.

But there was no immediate indication of how other military units would react to Rawson's move to rebel.

Liberals Turn Down Foulkes

A young Hope lawyer, Thomas Foster Isherwood, will contest the next federal election as standard bearer for the Liberal party in Victoria riding.

Three rooms packed with some 350 roaring Liberals last night gave Mr. Isherwood a margin of only two votes over the favored contender, Gen. Charles Foulkes.

While General Foulkes conceded his votes to Mr. Isherwood immediately upon announcement of the results, thus making the choice unanimous, it is understood the vote tally was 90 for the General and 92 for Mr. Isherwood.

Both men campaigned strongly for the candidacy. Mr. Isherwood admitted his knowledge of local affairs was limited, but he announced his intention to support development of Victoria University.

Gen. Foulkes attacked the present government's lack of a constructive policy in matters of defence and international affairs.

While the ballots were counted, Paul Bolyer, Liberal MP for Trinity and former associate defence minister, spoke to the nominating convention.

LONDON (Reuters) — A man who shot a fox was decorated with a silver medal Monday by the League Against Cruel Sports. Samuel Thomas, 70, shot the animal as it was being chased by dogs and hunters on horseback in the west of England. The hunters were so annoyed they threw Thomas' shotgun into a stream.

Joint A-Arms Control Now Offered Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—The United States has offered Canada joint control over nuclear weapons on Canadian territory on the basis of the Anglo-American "two-key" system, a reliable source said Monday.

The U.S. offer has been agreed upon by the Canadian and American defence departments and by the U.S. state department but as yet has not been accepted or acted on by the Canadian government, the source said.

McGill Plans Space First

MONTREAL (CP) — McGill University announced Monday it will expand its research program by firing small missile-shaped vehicles into the upper atmosphere. It will be the world's first non-government space testing.

The launching site is a high-altitude station at McGill's Bruce Research Institute in Barbados.

The vehicles will be rockets, shot high into the air by a gun, then fired higher by their own motors. They were designed in Canada.

Instead of ammunition, the vehicles or atmospheric probes—as scientists call them—will carry chemicals and measuring equipment. These are to be released in the upper atmosphere, where the vehicles will record the reactions and transmit them back to the ground by radio.

Court Dismisses Three Appeals

VANCOUVER (CP)—The British Columbia Court of Appeal ruled Monday the B.C. Electric Company, expropriated by the provincial government last August, is not an agent of the Crown.

The court ruled in a majority decision the company is not a government department and therefore does not enjoy Crown immunity from legal action although the provincial government is its sole shareholder.

The Appeal Court made this ruling in dismissing three appeals by the BCE against three pre-trial orders made by the Supreme Court of B.C. in an action by the B.C. Power Corporation, former parent company of the huge power utility.

FIGURE ASKED

B.C. Power seeks a Supreme Court declaration that the Power Development Act, under which BCE was expropriated, is invalid. Alternatively, it asks the court to set a fair compensation figure for the take-over. The provincial government paid B.C. Power $111,000,000 for the 1,604,000 common shares of BCE and offered to take over B.C. Power—a federally-incorporated company which it could not expropriate—for an additional $29,000,000.

AMENDMENT RID

B.C. Power seeks a declaration from the court that the company was actually worth $225,000,000 at the time of the take-over. An amendment to the act now before the legislature would withdraw the offer to take over B.C. Power and instead give it an additional $60,000,000 for BCE, bringing the total compensation to $171,000,000.

UNDER RECEIVERSHIP

Last week, on an application by the power corporation, the Supreme Court placed the BCE under receivership so that its assets would be safeguarded in the event B.C. Power wins its case. This decision has been appealed by the government and BCE and now is being debated in the Appeal Court.

DECISION UPHOLD

At Monday's sitting, the Appeal Court upheld Supreme Court decisions that:

1. BCE must hand over to B.C. Power the documents the corporation says it needs to prove its case.
2. BCE must permit the power corporation to enter BCE property for evaluation purposes.

Peace River Company Plans Damages Suit

VANCOUVER (CP) — The power but that the government broke it. The petition alleges that the government promised to maintain a reserve on the waters of the Peace for power purposes.

"INADEQUATE"

After expropriation of B.C. Electric last August, the provincial government assigned the Peace River project to BCE and paid $1,000,000 for the plans and surveys carried out for the development by Peace Power.

"The company's (Peace River) shareholders have decided that the company should take this action in view of the inadequacy of the payment made to them by the government for the expropriation of the company's assets," Mr. Mainwaring said.

The government has given no indication of whether or not a bill will be granted since the company's solicitors filed the petition of right, Mr. Mainwaring said.

STAY REQUIRED

The government has taken no action on the petition and therefore the company is now trying to launch a lawsuit, he said.

Mr. Mainwaring said a stay (permission to sue the Crown) was required before Peace River Power could begin a suit.

The petition maintains Peace River Power lived up to a contract signed with the government to develop the Peace for power.
